San Diego, Well Chosen More Children, More Pay Bryan Shocked the Ticker Taxing the Coffin

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Company.

SECRETARY WILBUR, with President Coolidge's approval, of course, will transfer the base of the navy's rigid dirigibles, Los Angeles and Shenandoah, from Lakehurst, N. J., to San Diego, Cal.

THERE ARE two good reasons. First, the climate of California offers the ideal all-year-round climate for flying experiments. San Diego is to be the centre of the nation's flying activities, and the greatest air base in the world.

SECOND, our fleet will remain more and more on the Pacific Coast. The Pacific Ocean is the most important as well as the biggest body of water on earth.

Its control means to the nations now what control of the Mediterranean meant in the days of Carthage and old Rome, and the Atlantic Ocean later.

A NEW wage idea comes from the coal miners of South Wales. They would pay a workman in proportion to the size of his family. Thus, if a man unmarried got five shillings, the married man would get one shilling additional and an extra allowance for the first, second, third and fourth children.

This suggestion comes NOT from a labor union, but from the men that own the coal mines in South Wales.

THEY ARE intelligent men, for the problem of modern industry and the industrial kings is TO MAKE INDUSTRY AND WORK ATTRACTIVE, not to squeeze men down to the lowest wage scale and drive them the longest possible number of hours.

THERE IS plenty of wealth below and above ground and in the brain of man to provide richly and generously for the entire human race. But as yet intelligence is content when it can get too much for itself, and willing to get by forcing others to take TOO LITTLE.

WALL STREET remembers W. J. Bryan and a shock like that of a conger eel that he once administered to the stock ticker.

It was in July, 1896, and Bryan's "Cross of Gold" speech was the shock. It nominated Bryan for the Presidency and knocked all the important stocks in Wall Street down 10 to 15 points.

The recent nomination of Mr. Davis did not have that effect.

SENATOR NORRIS will fight to retain the national taxes on inherited wealth, now very heavy.

President Coolidge believes those taxes should be abolished or greatly modified.

YOU CAN attack or support inheritance taxation convincingly. You may say that a great fortune which a widow and children can inherit only because the government protects them in their rights should pay something for the protection.

Or you can say that the tax should be put on the strong man in his life while he is working, and not put it on his coffin or children.

THE IMPORTANT thing is, that every man should do his best work. And the men worth having will work five times as hard as he would otherwise to provide for his children and mother. To discourage that is not a good idea.

GLADSTONE'S two sons call "liar, coward and fool" a captain, Peter Wright, who writes indecently about their father, saying it was his, Gladstone's, habit "in public to speak the language of the highest and strictest principle, and in private to pursue and possess every sort of woman."

WHY GLADSTONE'S sons should notice the state-

DETECTIVES QUESTION YOUTH IN GILLIS SLAYING, POSSES RECALLED

TERRIFIC FIREWORKS BLAST ROCKS BIG R. I. AREA, PERILS SCORES

Providence, July 29.—Thousands of persons were panic-stricken, buildings were rocked and a large dynamite supply in a nearby quarry was threatened when two buildings of Natale's Pearl Fireworks Company in Berkeley blew up with a resounding crash early today.

On information that three men were seen dashing away from the scene a short time before the explosion and that the fireworks could not have blown up without being touched off with a spark, the authorities made an investigation to ascertain if the explosion was deliberately planned.

Natale, the owner, was about to begin work today on a big contract, but he could tell the authorities of no enemy who might wish to hurt his business.

The blast shattered plate glass windows in a store a quarter-mile from the plant and blew out the windows of several houses nearer to the scene. The quarry, which was only an eighth of a mile away, rocked with the force of the explosion, according to Thomas J. Quinn, a contractor, who feared the concussion would set off a ton of dynamite stored there.

Firemen who went to fight the resulting fire at the fireworks plant risked their lives in approaching

MARTIN KANE'S NAME IN PICKWICK TRIAL

When trial of the twelve men indicted in the Pickwick Club collapse was resumed today, Charles A. Kendall, engineer, was subjected to a strenuous cross-examination by Joseph F. O'Connell, counsel for Building Inspector J. J. Hendrick.

Kendall admitted that he was still employed by the firm of Haven & Hopkins, architects.

He further admitted that he helped the attorney for Harry M. Haven, his employer, to prepare Haven's defence. Haven, like Hendrick, is a defendant in the Pickwick Club case.

In yesterday's testimony Kendall said that he told Hendrick the Pickwick Club building seemed unsafe and should be inspected. He continued that Hendrick had made the inspection and declared the building was "perfectly all right."

Kendall was taken for cross-examination by Joseph F. O'Connell, coun-

BOXER, IMPALED ON PICKET FENCE, DYING

Fall River, July 29.—Missing a rope on which he intended to slide down from a second story window at No 38 Fulton street, Joseph Reis, known under the boxing name of Young Barry, of No. 13 Morton street, was impaled upon the picket fence below.

Reis is in Fall River General Hospital with concussion of the brain and injuries to his chest. He is probably fatally hurt.

The accident happened when Reis started playing pranks with the tackle with which Joseph Fernandes of No. 16 Suffolk street and a crew were preparing to hoist a piano.

Police reports indicate the workmen had made several protests against Reis' acts in playing the piano and singing songs previously.

BEAT U. S. TARS IN AUSTRALIA

Sydney, N. S. W., July 29 (A.P.)—Attacks on sailors of the United States fleet, which is visiting here seemed to be on the increase today. The authorities are giving severe sentences to those responsible for the offenses.

Visiting newspapermen were tendered a dinner by the Australian Journalists' Association.

The first mail from the United States since the arrival of the fleet was received yesterday on the liner Ventura. The battleship West Virginia has been awarded the fleet pennant for proficiency in gunnery.

A feature of certain social functions in honor of the fleet personnel has been attendance of persons who publicly announced their intention of boycotting the fleet during its visit here.

CONGRESS TO TAKE UP CHINESE CASE, SAYS BORAH

Boise, Idaho, July 29 (A.P.).—The Chinese situation will be brought before the Senate at the next session of Congress, Senator Borah declared in an address here. Borah said:

"Unless the foreign governments conform to new conditions, respect the territorial rights of China, treat Chinese labor with justice and give the government revenue upon which she can live, we are going to have a condition in the Orient which everyone who loves peace will regret."

BRYAN'S BODY ON WAY TO GRAVE HE CHOSE

Dayton, Tenn., July 29 (I.N.S.)—William Jennings Bryan, Commoner, probably the most beloved man who ever sojourned in this little town, left Dayton today for the last time.

Three weeks from the day that he arrived to prosecute John Thomas Scopes for teaching evolution his body was carried out of the now historical spot that saw the last great fight of a life filled with battle.

The regular "local" to Chattanooga pulled out of the little red station soon after breakfast. Attached to it were two cars, one carrying the flag draped casket and the sorrowing relatives, the other bearing newspapermen.

At Chattanooga the cars were attached to a train for Washington. It will reach the capital tomorrow and burial will take place in Arlington National cemetery Friday afternoon.

As the two special cars pulled into the station to be hitched on to the local the casket and members of the funeral party were already aboard.

In the early morning hours the two cars had been switched to a siding, a block back of the Rogers' home.

Silently the casket had been borne out of the home where yesterday

BOY, HURLED FROM AUTO, LOSES LIFE

Holden, July 29.—Sixteen-year-old Henry Alfred Burgon of No. 24 Mill street, Quinapoxet, was instantly killed and a companion was badly injured when they were hurled from a speeding automobile at Temple curve while coming to Holden.

Warren Jones of Wachusett street, Quinapoxet, riding with Burgon in the rear of the sport racer, and declared by other occupants to have been "fooling" with his companion, will recover from his injuries.

Three others were in the forward seat of the speeding car in which Burgon and Jones were taken to the Holden District Hospital. Burgon was dead on arrival. He was employed in a mill.

BELIEVE COUSIN OF CHOREBOY CAN HELP SOLVE 2 KILLINGS

Hudson, N. H., July 29.—With the purpose of his presence blanketed in mystery, Andrew LeFebvre, eighteen, of Fitchburg, Mass., was questioned today by police investigating the slaying of Helen and Georgianna Gillis, aged Hudson sisters.

By town, county and State officials, the boy, a cousin of Charles LeFebvre, fifteen-year-old chore boy for the sisters, was closely cross-examined.

The several posses that have been scouring the woods in search of a madman believed to be the slayer, have been called off of the hunt.

Andrew Le Febvre, held as a "guest" in the Nashua jail, is expected by officials to be an important help in the solving of the crime.

The boy's home is at No. 13 Seventh avenue, Nashua, N. H., but for several days he had been staying with an aunt, Mrs. Blanche hundreds gazed for the last time on the features of the Commoner, and placed aboard the funeral car.

WIDOW SITS BY BODY OF BRYAN ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

COMMONER TO LIE IN STATE IN CHURCH AT CAPITAL

An hour later Mrs. Bryan, the widow, and her party boarded the car, without attracting notice.

The casket rested in an observation car. Floral tributes banked one end of the compartment. Many more such tributes, from cities and places far beyond the crest of the Cumberland hills, were waiting at Chattanooga—enough to fill another car.

DAUGHTER WITH HER.

With Mrs. Bryan, to comfort her on the dreary journey to the capital, a trip that can only be compared to the trip that Mrs. Warren G. Harding underwent in 1923, went a small group of relatives and friends.

The immediate relatives were Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, a daughter, and her husband, Reginald Owen; Mrs. B. Sherman Jennings, widow of a former Governor of Florida and a kinswoman of the Bryans, and her son Bryan Jennings. There were also in the party W. E. Thompson, secretary to Bryan; Miss E. Stevens, Mrs. Bryan's companion; William E. McCartney, the chauffeur who found the Commoner dead; R. J. Coulter, the Dayton undertaker, and Wallace Haggard, who represents the Scopes prosecution and the city of Dayton.

Illinois Democrats Plan to Carry on Bryan Ideals

Chicago, July 29 (I.N.S.).—Illinois supporters of William Jennings Bryan in the great battles that were staged in this State for a generation are planning an intensive organization campaign from one end of the Commonwealth to the other.

The purpose is to carry on the fight for the Bryan political ideals and to give battle to the opposition all along the line.

Reports from down State, where Mr. Bryan was venerated to a remarkable degree by the Democratic voters, are that there is already on foot a movement to "keep green his memory" by carrying his ideals into the succeeding political contests. The only harmony they say they want is the triumph of Bryanism in Illinois Democratic politics.

Local leaders, particularly the chiefs in the regular organization, are more concerned over the probable effect of Mr. Bryan's death on the next national convention than what may transpire in Illinois in 1928.

District leaders who "fought, bled and died" for Governor Al Smith in the Madison square convention are almost a unit in predicting that control of the 1928 convention will now fall into the hands of the regulars.

While paying tributes to Mr. Bryan's courage and great influence, the Chicago contingent, which is still talking Smith for President, believes that with the magic voice stilled the "organization" can run the next convention with little trouble.

Bryan's Body to Lie in State in Church

Washington, July 29 (I.N.S.).—Arrangements for the funeral and burial here on Friday of William Jennings Bryan moved toward completion today.

When the body arrives at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning it will be taken to the undertaking parlors of John T. Wright, at 1337 Tenth street, N. W., there to rest until the funeral at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The services will be in charge of the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the church, who are due to reach Washington from the Pacific Coast Friday morning to join their mother and other relatives. The Commoner's brother, former Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, is also expected there tonight or tomorrow.

William Jennings Bryan, Jr., and his sister, Mrs. Grace Hargreaves, is returning here from Chaumont, N. Y.

The body will be taken from the undertakers to the church at 10 a. m. Friday, to lie in state until time for the funeral.

Three Prayers by Bryan

Dayton, Tenn., July 29.—Just before he died William Jennings Bryan dictated to Richard Rogers, Dayton druggist, three short prayers which the Commoner had been accustomed to offer as grace before meals.

These are the brief petitions Mr. Bryan dictated before he lay down for his short nap from which he never awoke:

God is great, and God is good, and we thank Him for food. By His hand must all be fed; give us Lord, our daily bread."

"Be present at our table, Lord; be here and everywhere adored. These mercies bless and grant that we may feast with Thee in Paradise."

"We thank Thee, Heavenly Father, that Thou dost supply Thy children's needs. May we in return give Thee the service of consecrated lives."

Darrow Makes Reply to Bryan's Last Words

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 29 (A.P.).—Clarence Darrow, Chicago lawyer who upheld the theory of evolution at the John T. Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn, answered, very briefly, the final message of William Jennings Bryan, fundamentalist champion and his chief opponent at the Dayton trial. Mr. Darrow came here for a brief vacation and probably will remain two days.

Like the message of Mr. Bryan, given out through the press, by Mrs. Bryan on account of the Commoner's death, Mr. Darrow also issued his answer through the press and not in an address.

"I have read what Mr. Bryan intended for his speech at Dayton only hurriedly," Mr. Darrow said, "but it impresses me as only the argumentative statement of a lawyer. He referred again to the Loeb and Leopold case, and the philosophy of Nietzsche. He indicates that, in his belief, such philosophy may have been responsible for their act.

"Loeb knew nothing of evolution or Nietzsche. It is probable he never heard of either. Leopold did, it is true, and had read Nietzsche. But because Leopold had read Nietzsche, does that prove that this philosophy or education was responsible for the act of two crazy boys?

"Isn't it peculiar that of the millions of young men and women who have attended universities and colleges of the country and studied evolution and perhaps Nietzsche, that only one of them should commit such a crime as Leopold did?

"If I remember right, about a week or so after Loeb and Leopold committed their crime a preacher poisoned his wife and a woman and her husband. Would any one claim that religion had caused this preacher to do the thing he did?

"In this world little, if anything, is accomplished without progress. To make Christians of the Chinese you would be forced to kill many of them. The invention of the printing press was frowned upon and even cost some lives, but no one maintains that it has not done good.

"The building of railroads has cost many lives, but they aided humanity. Each year automobiles kill more persons than are killed by homicides, but that is no reason they should be abandoned pack and parcel.

"The trial at Dayton has done several things which are significant. Of the jurors who heard the case at Dayton only one of them had ever heard of evolution. Today in Dayton they are selling more books of evolution than any other kind, and the book shops in Chattanooga and other cities of the State are hardly able to supply the demands for works on evolution. The trial has at least started people to thinking."

CLARENCE DARROW

Traces Bryan Back to Brian Boru, Irish King

New York, July 29 (A.P.).—The ancestry of William Jennings Bryan has been traced to Brian O'Brian, a captain in King James' Irish army in the war against William of Orange.

Michael J. O'Brien, historiographer of the American Irish Historical Society, today told how eighteen years ago he had traced the Brian genealogy directly as far back as 1689 and showed that there is a possibility that the Commoner was descended from Brian Boru, a King of Ireland in the eleventh century.

Mr. O'Brien said that the name O'Brian became changed to Brian and subsequently to Bryan, after the removal of one of the family from North Carolina, where Captain O'Brian first settled, to Culpepper County, Va.

BRYAN URGED CHILDREN TO "FOLLOW THE BIBLE"

Chester, Pa., July 29 (A.P.).—A recent message from William Jennings Bryan to the children of Chester was recalled today. He wrote it to the Children's Corner of the Chester Times conducted by Miss Ruth A. Hogeland. It follows:

"Please say to the children: There is no new advice to give the young. Life is what it has been from the beginning. There is only one book to which I can refer you, and that is the Bible. There is no other book which is the revealed will of God. Follow it and you cannot go astray."

BRYAN BELIEVED HE'D DIE WHILE ASLEEP

Macon, Mo., July 29 (A.P.).—William Jennings Bryan had a premonition he would die in sleep.

Last Summer he said to Dr. A. C. Hildreth of Macon: "My heart has not been treating me just right. Some time after a big meeting, or an occasion where I have been engaged in a sharp contest, I shall lie down to rest and sleep a sleep that will be eternal."

The doctor recalled how closely the prophecy had been fulfilled by Mr. Bryan's death at Dayton Sunday.

WORKMAN FALLS THROUGH WINDOW

Hugh McGrail, a plumber's helper, was cut about the head, face and hands today when he fell through a window while working on the first floor at No. 74 Brookline avenue, Back Bay. He is twenty-two, and lives in Geneva avenue, Dorchester. He was taken to City Hospital.

COOLIDGE TO BE A GUEST AT G. O. P. OUTING

On his first political trip East former Governor Charles S. Deneen of Illinois, now Junior U. S. Senator from that State and a strong political power in the West, will be one of the major speakers at the Essex Men's Republican Club outing this afternoon at Centennial Grove, Chebacco Lake, Essex.

Mr. Dineen was one of the leading figures at the Republican national convention in 1920 and in the last elections defeated Medill McCormick of Illinois after a hard fight and spectacular campaign.

Mr. Deneen attends the outing through the influence of Senator Butler and following the meeting will be the guest of President Coolidge at Swampscott.

The President and Frank W. Stearns will attend the meeting and many members of the Massachusetts Legislature who served with the President on Beacon Hill will meet him again today. The meeting is expected to be the largest political gathering in the State this season.

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Senator William H. Butler, Senator Deneen and A. Piatt Andrews of Gloucester will be the principal speakers.

Frederick H. Tarr of Rockport, president of the Essex Club, will preside and many prominent men from the New England States will attend. John L. Saltonstall, Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long, Francis W. Prescott, chairman of the Republican State Committee; William D. Phillips, Ambassador to Belgium; Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to France; Captain Andrews of the Mayflower, Henry Cabot Lodge 3rd and John Davis Lodge of Nahant are among those invited.

The President will leave White Court shortly after luncheon and motor to the grave.

WARNS MOTHERS OF SCHOOL ATHLETICS

Amherst, Mass., July 29 (A.P.).—High school boys who participate in interscholastic games should be both overweight and overheight, according to Dr. Caroline Hedger of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund, Chicago. In an address on malnutrition at Farm and Home week here she cautioned mothers against allowing their sons to indulge in athletics.

"High school athletes tend to wear a boy out before he gets to college," she declared. "Many school coaches are much more interested in winning games than in improving the health of athletes."

BOY'S STORY PUZZLING.

The stories told by Charles Le Febvre, the chore boy, have puzzled the authorities in that the lad was first questioned a few hours after the aged sisters were found dead in their home, their skulls crushed by some blunt instrument.

The lad's first story appeared to be straightforwardo, but several days later, when closely questioned, he denied completely his first story and told an entirely different tale.

It was then the authorities began to investigate the boy and those associated with him.

The authorities so far have refused to divulge just why they are questioning the cousin of the chore boy. They refuse to admit that he was in the vicinity of the Gillis sisters at the time they were slain.

GOES WITHOUT WARRANT.

The New Hampshire authorities went to the Fitchburg home early today and aroused the lad from his slumber. They explained to him that they had no warrant for his arrest, but that they wished to question him. He agreed at once to return to Nashua and was taken to the Nashua police station, while his cousin is being grilled at Nashua.

This is the fifth time that the boy has been questioned by the authorities. The first three times he stoutly held to a story of going to the postoffice for the Gillis mail at 4:30 last Wednesday afternoon, the day of the double murder.

This was disproven by statements of the postmistress and the accumulated mail in the Gillis box. On the fourth examination he admitted to Attorney-General Weldon and Chief Goodwin of Nashua that he lied.

MOTHER IS ILL.

The boy further admitted that he was also lying when he led the police to believe that a woman had called at the Gillis home last Wednesday previous to the murder. The woman he described as the visitor was a relative, a woman who called at the home of the sisters after she had received word from the police of the double murder.

In the latest examination the boy told other untruths. In being questioned about a relative he said he didn't know this person and later admitted talking with him in Hudson.

Mrs. LeFebvre, the boy's mother, was ill in bed and under a doctor's care as a result of the visit to her home by Sheriff O'Dowd. This visit followed the discovery by the sheriff that the mother had sent to the authorities, upon their request for the shirt worn by the lad last Wednesday, a garment of the same color not worn by the boy on day of the murder.

On this same visit the sheriff secured the shirt the boy had worn last Wednesday and was able to identify it by an iron rust stain on the sleeve. It had not been laundered. When a brother of the boy protested the frequent examinations, he was curtly told by one of the authorities, "You go home and mind your own business."

GOVERNMENT READY TO RUN BRITISH MINES

London, July 29.—The Baldwin government was reported willing today to take over Great Britain's coal mines if measures to forestall the strike of 1,200,000 miners Friday are not effective. Confidence that the situation would be amicably settled before the strikeh our was expressed, however. Premier Baldwin today attended a joint meeting of miners and operators after conferring with the owners and meeting the officers of the Miners' Federation separately. The Cabinet was held ready for instant call, should a meeting to discuss the emergency become necessary.

NEW YORK PUTS BAN ON OVERGROWN BABY FARMS

New York, July 29 (A.P.)—As a result of the disclosures concerning the Gelsen-Volk baby farm and the sentence of the proprietress to State Prison, Health Commissioner Monaghan announced his department would license no more baby farms of the type where more than six infants are kept at one time.

Mrs. August Gelsen-Volk was convicted of baby substitution and it was shown that she boarded several more children than she was licensed to.

Will Show How to Kill Everything in 20 Miles

San Francisco, Cal., July 29 (A. P.).—Demonstration of a destructive force which he has invented will be carried out on a United States battleship off the coast of California, Dr. Edwin R. Scott of Detroit has announced.

Dr. Scott, who is said to have sold the French government the "Killalite" artillery shell during the World War, calls his new munition the "Death Stroke." He claims for it that it will kill life with which it comes in contact within a radius of twenty miles. The naval demonstration will take place within two months, the Detroit inventor said.

MARTIN KANE IS NAMED BY WITNESS

sel for Building Inspector J. J. Hendrick.

Q.—There was a city inspector of cement, who inspected the cement piers in the Pickwick Club building in addition to the inspector who represented your company? A.—Yes. There was supposed to be. I never saw him there, that I can recall.

Judge Lummus—You have incorporated in your question the assumption that this witness knew an inspector was on the job. But he says he does not remember seeing one.

MARTIN KANE NAMED.

Attorney O'Connell—Will Mr. Kane kindly stand up? (It later came out the man's name was Martin Kane. Kane stood up.)

Witness looked at Kane and said he did not remember seeing him on the Beach street job.

Attorney Thomas N. Creed, counsel for Daniel Barry, another defendant, took the witness. He asked concerning the condition of the stairway of the Pickwick Club building between the second and third floors.

Kendall said the stairway between those two landings was only slightly burned and not unsafe.

Attorney Charles E. Fay, counsel for John L. Pultz, general contractor, asked if Pultz attended any other conference with Elston, the building wrecker; Haven, the architect, and the witness, beside that of March 26.

TALKED OF BUILDING.

Witness said Pultz attended only that conference, at which the condition of the Pickwick Club was discussed.

Assistant District Attorney Alperi—Are you still employed by Haven & Hopkins, Inc., architects? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you assisted Attorney Garland in preparing this case? A.—Yes.

DRAW PLANS OF SOMERVILLE FORD PLANT

Definite plans for the erection of the mammoth Ford assembling plant in Somerville have been completed and specification for the project are on file at the Master Builders' Association plan room of the F.W. Dodge Corporation, it was announced today.

Bids for the construction of the plant will be received by Albert Kahn, architect, of Detroit, and will close August 5. Upon awarding of the contract work will be started immediately.

The specifications call for a one-story building, 301x1,130 feet; a power house, 63x69 feet, and an oil plant, 61x113 feet. The construction will be of reinforced concrete, brick and steel.

WALL OF MEN AND GUNS TO BLOCK SMUGGLERS

Washington, July 29 (I.N.S.).—Erection of a new first-line defence against smuggling of liquor from Canada and Mexico into the United States was started today by Assistant Secretary Andrews, prohibition czar.

The reinforced customs patrol will be motorized, and a powerful wall of men and guns will be set up. The patrol will extend its activities to the effort to prevent illegal entry of aliens, narcotics and merchandise, as well as rum.

In the long stretch of unguarded border from Minnesota to Washington, millions of dollars' worth of cattle are smuggled annually. Wheat smuggling also is a common practice.

FIREWORKS IN BLAST ROCK R. I. TOWN

Thousands Excited as Brilliant Pyrotechnic Display Menaces Lives and Homes

near to the remaining five buildings, which housed great quantities of unexploded bombs and other display fireworks.

Hundreds of curious men, women and children, defying the commands of firemen, gathered close to the plant, while burning embers from the two blazing buildings were flying near to other structures.

BRILLIANT PYROTECHNICS.

The explosion began with a blast in a storehouse, followed immediately by showers of brilliant lights, as the aerial bombs shot into the air and burst. Then the storehouse burst into flames.

Blazing embers landed on the roof of a workhouse, near the first building, burned quickly through and set off a large stock of aerial bombs, in process of manufacture.

Residents of the nearest dwellings rushed to the street, panic stricken. People all over this section, as far away as fifteen miles from the explosion, believed there had been an earthquake and telephone calls poured into police headquarters from several communities.

Before the firemen could get the fire under control, thousands had come from this State and from Massachusetts in automobiles to see the recurring display of fireworks. There was difficulty in fighting the fire because of the isolated location of the plant, but its isolation is believed to have saved many persons from serious injury or death.

WOMAN SEES AUTO.

Beyond shock and fright, no one was injured. Those most badly shocked were the families of Dominic Jennarelli. Matthew Hunter, J. J. Egan and Thomas Ryan, close to the plant. In their houses the windows were nearly all shattered and they feared a great disaster had occurred.

Mrs. Jennarelli declared she saw a car in the vicinity before the explosion. It left, she said, but returned, and then sped away again. The blast followed in about fifteen minutes.

The plant was located in the woods off Mendon road, Berkeley. Firemen from Valley Falls and Berkeley were called to the scene. Less than a month ago, on June 4, a fireworks factory owned by Paul De Napoli, in North Providence, was entirely destroyed by a blast which shook the entire neighborhood.

Natale's Pearl Fireworks Company had no license, according to Town Clerk Joseph V. Broderick of Berkeley, but was allowed to continue in business because of its remote location. There is no ordinance governing the manufacture of fireworks, but there is an ordinance against storing explosives without a permit, and such a permit the company did not have, according to Clerk Broderick. The plant has been in operation about five years.

NEWPORT GIRLS ARE BEAUTY RIVALS

Consul's Wife Causes Liquor Raid on Husband's Home

MRS. GOULD CAN NOW SNUB '400'

Widow Who Married a Title to Win Place in London's Social Sun

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

(Copyright, 1925, by Universal Service.)

New York, July 29.—Scorned by the American "Social Register," George J. Gould's beautiful widow will now have her name enrolled in the sacred pages of the English peerage.

In Montreal, the former English chorus girl, whose secret marriage to the head of the Gould family, and subsequent legal battle for a share of the Gould millions for her three young children, born out of wedlock, gained for her world-wide notoriety, surprised society on both continents by marrying George Rt. John Brodrick, Viscount Dunsford, son and heir of the politically powerful Earl of Middleton, and a descendant of Sir Thomas Brodrick of Surrey, Lieutenant-Governor of the Tower of London in the sixteenth century.

No announcement had been made of the engagement to the English peer and only a few close friends were aware of the romance which began two Winters ago when Mrs. Gould and her children were stopping in Switzerland.

According to dispatches from Montreal the wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Dr. Hanson of the American Presbyterian Church and while a list of guests was not available those who knew the new Viscountess Dunsford feel certain her aged mother, Mrs. Alexander Sinclair, who stood by her side all through the dark days when she was baring the innermost secrets of her life to secure a financial settlement for her children by Mr. Gould, was present.

BAD COLORFUL CAREER.

Her husband's family wields great political and social power in England, and should they smile on the union the former Mrs. Gould will have little trouble in securing the approval of the "powers that be," for one of her new sisters-in-law, Lady Ronald Graham, was maid of honor to Queen Mary following the coronation in 1911. Lady Tweedmouth is also a sister of the bridegroom, who is thirty-seven years old. He was divorced from Peggy Bush, formerly an actress at the London Haymarket Theatre, in January of this year.

Still in her thirties Viscountess Dunsford has had a colorful, spectacular life. It is doubtful, however, if the true story of her meeting with the late George J. Gould has ever been told. Some twelve or thirteen years ago she was appearing in a London musical production and caught the attention of the late Mr. Gould's brother, Howard, who, since his famed romance with Doris Keane, the actress, has lived abroad permanently, at Wallingford on the Thames.

Announcing to Howard Gould that she was coming to New York for the first time, she was presented with a note of introduction to George Gould. In the note Howard Gould requested his brother to look after the interests of Miss Sinclair during the time her play was running in New York.

STAYED IN NEW YORK.

Mr. Gould at that time was married to the late Edith Kingdon Gould, then at the zenith of her social fame. Prodigious entertainments were being given at both the Goulds' Fifth avenue mansion and down at "Georgian Court," Lakewood.

Shortly after Miss Sinclair's arrival with the letter from Howard Gould it was noted that George Gould was frequently absent from the social gatherings at the various Gould homes, and when the time came for the English company, of which Miss Sinclair was a member, to return to England she remained behind, and, as "Mrs." Sinclair took up her residence in a large house in Seventy-fourth street, just off from Riverside Drive and overlooking the gardens of Charles M. Schwab's chateau-like home.

Later she became the mistress of a handsome Tudor house on Manursing Island, at Rye, and the mystery of "Mrs." Sinclair and her lovely children who resided there with her was not cleared up until after the sudden death of Edith Kingdon Gould on her private golf links at Lakewood. Mrs. Gould died in the Autumn of 1921, and in May of the following year Mr. Gould wed "Mrs." Sinclair at Lakewood.

NEWPORT GIRLS IN CONTESTS

Beauty, Popularity, Costumes Voted on at Society's Summer Capital

Newport, R. I., July 28.—America's social elect, gathered here for the late Summer vacation days, have dropped their usual boredom and are keenly interested in a beauty contest in which a score of society "debs" and "sub-debs" are gathered.

The contest is being held for the benefit of the Newport Hospital and the arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, who is also in charge of benefit lawn fete which will be held at the Casino on Thursday evening.

In reality there are two contests—one for the most beautiful girl and one for the most popular girl in the Summer colony.

MISS COCHRAN IN LEAD.

Miss Jean Cochran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford A. Cochran of New York, who is visiting Mr. Clarence W. Dolan and Miss Rita Dolan has taken the lead in the contest for the prettiest girl, having 711 votes. Miss Ann Carley, daughter of Mrs. King Carley, is second with 580; Miss Catherine Brown, daughter of Mrs. Gardner Brown, third with 470; Mrs. J. Theus Munda, fourth with 460, and the others entered, in order, are Miss Marion De Rham, 220; Miss Theola Barker, 200; Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart, Jr., 191; Miss Elizabeth Robinson, 80; Miss Ien Mitchell, 24, and Miss Carola Havemeyer, 13.

Miss Edith Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Taylor, is leading in the contest for the most popular girl, having 662 votes. Miss Marion De Rham is second, with 500; Miss Sylvia Hillhouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hillhouse, third, with 380; Mrs. Paulding Fosdick and Miss Anna Burr Auchincloss, daughter of Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, tied, with 100 votes, and Miss Marion Wilson next.

BEST DRESSED CONTEST.

In the contest for the handsomest woman, Mrs. Morehead Patterson leads with 900 votes, Countess Alfonso P. Villa and Mrs. Williams Burden being tied for second with 100 votes each, and Mrs. Herbert C. Fell, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Ridgway, Mrs. Ogden L. Mills and Mrs. Forsyth Wickes following in the order named.

Mrs. John Wanamaker, Jr., has a big lead in the contest for the best dressed woman, having 650 votes. Mrs. Gustave J. S. White and Miss Roberta Willard are next, with 230 and 220 votes, respectively, with Mrs. James Denison Sawyer and Mrs. William Goadby Loew also entered.

PRIZES FOR WINNERS.

Mr. Edward J. Berwind has 120 votes in the competition for the handsomest man, with Messrs. H. S. Steffanson, Sydney Smith, Jr., Frederick P. Moore and William Kip following in the order named. Henry Phelps is in the lead for the most popular man, with Hendrik Pruyn second.

The winners of these contests will be presented with prizes at the conclusion of the balloting during the lawn fete.

DR. PARCHER IN CHARGE OF PORTLAND HOSPITAL

Portland, Me., July 29.—Dr. George Parcher, a native of Maine, arrived here to take charge of the United States Marine Hospital. He succeeds Dr. H. B. Mathewson who has been transferred to Providence as surgeon in charge of the public health service station there. Dr. Parcher was born in Ellsworth and comes here from Staten Island, N. Y., where he was in charge of the quarantine station. He is a graduate of Bowdoin College and Harvard Medical School.

THIRD MAN SOUGHT IN FATAL CRASH

Wareham, July 29.—Wareham police, investigating the automobile crash in which Francis Clifton, twenty-five years old, of Union street, Brighton, was killed, expect to talk with the third man in the machine within the next two days, it was stated. Daniel E. Doherty of No. 16 Snow street, Brighton, who was with Clinton when a truck they were driving crashed into a telegraph pole, was slightly hurt.

VIES WITH OTHER SMART DRESSERS

Miss Roberta Willard, who is tied for second place with Mrs. Gustave J. S. White in Newport society's contest for "best dressed woman." This, the beauty and popularity contests, are being conducted by Newport's smart set for the benefit of the Newport Hospital.

MOTHER ASKS AMERICAN TO FIND BOY

Portland, Me., July 29.—A broken hearted mother, Mrs. Angelina Ciampi of No. 74 Federal street, Portland, has started a country-wide search for her missing seventeen-year-old son, Michael, who disappeared a week ago. Today she appealed to the Boston Evening American to aid in the search.

The boy, a junior in the Portland high school, had been employed as a truck driver. He quit his job and, according to friends, announced he was going to Philadelphia, after which he disappeared.

The local authorities have been unable to find any trace of the missing youth.

When last seen by his mother he wore a blue suit, a light blue hat and brown shoes. He is of light complexion. She has requested the local police to find her son and asks those possessing information of his whereabouts to communicate with them or this newspaper.

POLICE KILL DOG THAT ATTACKED 2 CHILDREN

Manchester, N. H., July 29.—Two dogs, thought to be suffering from rabies, which have bitten four people, have terrorized residents of the West Side and North End. John Mahan, park department employe, succeeded in wounding one dog after he attacked children, and later police killed the animal.

O'BRIEN GIVEN DATA UPON SWIG CASE

The office of District Attorney O'Brien of Suffolk County has been furnished with such data as the State Attorney-General's Office has in its possession in the matter of Simon Swig and the defunct Tremont Trust Company, of which he was head.

The data sent from the State House also covers the activities of Henry F. Lehan, city treasurer of Cambridge at the time the Tremont Trust Company failed.

Last April, Swig and Lehan went to trial before Judge Sisk, in Middlesex Superior Court, on indictments growing out of Lehan's act of depositing $500,000 of Cambridge city funds with the Tremont Trust Company in 1920, a comparatively short time before the bank closed.

John P. Feeney raised the question of jurisdiction. Assistant District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell argued in support of the trial proceeding. Judge Sisk, after consideration, sustained the contentions of Feeney and Bushnell agreed to nolle pros the cases. Feeney objected and urged the court to have the defendants ordered discharged, which was done.

Bushnell announced that the dismissal did not mean the end, and said he would file a memorandum concerning it, asserting that both defendants could be indicted in either Middlesex or Suffolk counties.

GETS REVENGE AFTER LOVE QUARREL

New York, July 29.—The home of Pierre Moracchini, French vice-consul, was invaded by prohibition agents and his secretary, Mrs. Margaret Giovanoni, was arrested on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquors.

The raid, which revealed a story of intrigue, love and romance, after revelations made to United States Attorney Buckner by Mme. Moracchini, estranged wife of the diplomat, who told how her husband had received liquors under the cloak of diplomatic immunity.

PERSIAN GOT WARRANT.

After her arrest Mrs. Giovanoni declared: "This will not end here. The French Embassy in Washington will be heard from."

Following a divorce action, the diplomat returned to Paris, Mme. Moracchini remaining in this country. The lease of the luxurious Riverside Drive home, with its furnishings, was sold recently to A. N. Mirzaoff, Persian nobleman, author and picture broker. The warrant which led to the raid was sworn out by Mirzaoff, who said that he had seen liquor sold on the premises and feared that it would involve him and his family.

Mme. Moracchini, in her interview with the Federal prosecutor, told how her husband had received quantities of liquor through the misuse of "diplomatic immunity." She said that on the arrival of a French boat her husband would visit the consulate and remove the liquor which was always consigned in tin cases, carefully packed. The tins were sealed and came through marked with the usual embassy immunity.

EVIDENCE AFTER BREAK.

Loading it in his car, Moracchini would take it to his apartment, where it would remain but a short time. She said that the pay of a French vice-consul was not large when francs were converted into dollars, but that her husband managed to maintain an apartment the rental of which was $225 a month, as well as an automobile.

Secret service agents have been working for some time on tips that articles were coming through various consulates duty free, but because of the immunity which diplomatic mail enjoys it has been difficult to secure evidence. The rift in the marital life of the Moracchinis led to the first disclosures.

ORLANDO ROUSES ITALIANS TO RIOT

Rome, July 29 (A.P.).—On the day that the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, printed an editorial on the political situation in Italy, advising that if the Fascist regime was to go forward it would have to punish all law-breakers, ex-Premier Orlando, opponent of the Fascist government, reiterated his dissatisfaction with the way Italian affairs were being conducted.

His words precipitated a riot which required intervention of a detachment of troops.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION SAVES TWO CHILDREN

Montpelier, Vt., July 29.—Blood transfusions saved the lives of two children in this State. At Rutland young Clarence Packard gave his blood to his sister, Grace, eight years old, who was operated on after her skull had been crushed by the kick of a horse.

At Mary Fletcher Hospital in Burlington a volunteer gave his blood to ten-year-old Kenneth Whitefield, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Whitefield of Montclair, N. J., whose arteries had been severed in an accident.

70-YEAR-OLD NUN WINS COLLEGE DEGREE

New Orleans, July 29 (A.P.).—A seventy-year-old nun, who received her early education in a day when women seldom added letters after their names, was among forty-two students of whom degrees will be conferred at Loyola University today.

Sister Mary of St. Cyphrian, a native of this city, after four years of study, is to receive the degree of bachelor of arts.

2 ROXBURY BOYS SAVED AFTER CANOE UPSETS

Two Roxbury youths who endeavored to change seats in a canoe while 200 feet off shore in the Charles River Basin owes their lives to Patrolman Warren Perkins, motorboat officer assigned to river duty.

The lads rescued by the officer are James Hughes, eighteen, of No. 5 Vine avenue, Roxbury, and John Ahern, twenty, of No. 27 Dunreagh street.

Man With Broken Back Expected to Recover

Hyannis, July 29.—As a result of an operation performed by Dr. Frederic J. Cotton of Boston, in Cape Cod Hospital, it is believed that Everett Preethy, 37, of Chatham, has a good chance of recovering after suffering a broken neck.

Preethy fell from a staging on which he was working, dropped 25 feet, hit another staging and then struck the ground.

WOMAN'S JEALOUSY BRINGS RUM RAID

Information given to Federal prohibition officers by Mme. Moracchini, wife of the French vice-consul in New York City, led them to seize the liquor stored at the home of her husband, whom she is suing for divorce. In her interview with the U. S. authorities, Mme. Moracchini told how her husband received quantities of liquor under cloak of "diplomatic immunity."

GEN. COLE GIVES UP VACATION TO AID LEGION

Will Spend Week Conducting Windup Campaign for Endowment Fund

Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, commander of the 51st Infantry Brigade of the Yankee Division overseas, fourth commander of the American Legion in Massachusetts, the general officer with the reputation of having been further front than any other general during the war, has volunteered to give one week of his annual vacation to supervising a wind-up campaign for the American Legion Endowment Fund in Boston next week.

Commander Leo M. Harlow, in accepting General Cole's offer to conduct a "vacation week wind-up," stated that all the facilities of State Headquarters and of the posts of greater Boston would be placed at the general's disposal.

"Massachusetts has raised $388,000," said Commander Harlow. "Despite the closing of the special Endowment Fund campaign office in Boston a month ago, legionnaires have been continuing drives for this disabled veteran and orphan fund, in Newburyport, Lynn, New Bedford and Boston. Salem, Holyoke, Lawrence and Chicopee have had no campaign to date, but will undertake drives in September.

"The department has advised national headquarters that we expect to reach $400,000 by the time of the State convention here in Boston the end of next month.

NEWLYWEDS ON YACHT HAVE DISAPPEARED

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 29 (Universal).—Fear is felt today for the fate of the Freya, the sailboat which is carrying Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Jr., prominent in Chicago society, on their honeymoon cruise over the Great Lakes.

Coast Guard cutters sent to the shoal off Point St. Ignace, Mich., where the Freya was reported by wireless as floundering in a turbulent sea, returned unable to find a trace of the craft.

JAP WARSHIP TO BRING BODY OF BANCROFT

Tokyo, July 29 (A.P.).—Foreign office officials have left for Karuizawa to co-operate with the officials of the American embassy in making arrangements for the transfer to Tokyo of the body of Edgar Addison Bancroft, the American ambassador, who died there.

It is probable the Japanese government will tender the use of a battleship to convey the body to the United States.

Baron Shidehara, the foreign minister, has telegraphed condolences to the State Department.

The foreign office reception to the United States congressmen, who are visiting Japan, has been cancelled.

Bancroft Scion of Noted Worcester Family

Chicago, July 28 (A.P.).—Edgar A. Bancroft, who died of duodenal ulcer at his post in Japan, descended from the famous Bancroft family of Worcester County, Mass., to which belonged the famous American historian, George Bancroft.

The late ambassador has been prominent in public and business life in Chicago and Illinois as business man, railroad official, attorney, civic leader and a profound student of law.

In 1894, he obtained the first injunction in a railroad strike, and later was counsel against Clarence Darrow in the contempt proceedings which resulted in a sentence of six months' imprisonment for Eugene V. Debs, and fellow officers of the American Railway Union.

He married in 1896 Miss Margaret Healy, daughter of Richard Healey, of the well-known Boston family, and a graduate of Vassar College.

Besides his brother, Frederick, he leaves two sisters, Mrs. Wilson H. Pierce, and Miss Elizabeth Bancroft, both of Chicago.

While arrangements for interment have not been completed, it is expected Mr. Bancroft's body will be returned to Galesburg, to rest beside that of his wife, who died three years ago.

Marquise di Ruffano Off to Institute of Politics

Society Folk and Savants Alike Now Hastening to Williamstown Sessions

Betty Alden

THE MARQUISE A. FERRANTI DI RUFFANO (Virginia MacVeagh) immediately after staging a North Shore function of corps diplomatique flavor, departs for Williamstown in the Berkshire Hills, there to partake of the feast of reason at the annual Institute of Politics toward which society folk and savants alike are hastening.

THE OPENING gun of this world-watched gathering, with President Harry A. Garfield of Williams College playing the official host role was the formal reception at President's House, first function of the Institute, always a brilliant scene, with Mrs. Garfield and the daughter of the house, Miss Lucretia Garfield assisting.

PRESIDENT'S HOUSE, erected more than a hundred years ago, has been the homes of Williams Presidents for eighty years or so. It is a veritable treasure house of priceless antiques, furniture and paintings, and a gem of architecture with its stately rooms and beautiful turned out carvings and wainscots.

THAT Mrs. Leonard Opdyke, the onetime Frances Prescott, with Mr. Opdyke, will be in Boston next Winter is good news indeed, to the hosts of friends and relatives of this smart young matron. As Miss Prescott, daughter of Mrs. Linzee Prescott, sister of Mrs. Willard Simpkins (Augusta Prescott) of Boston and New York, and of Mrs. Theodore Colcord Baker (Edith C. Prescott), of Cambridge, she was a belle in the smartest set.

LIKE her sister, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Opdyke served overseas during the World War, the latter at London and Paris with one of the big war service organizations. Her marriage, a few years ago to Mr. Opdyke carried her away from her Boston environment temporarily. She and Mr. Opdyke are to have an apartment in Mount Vernon street the coming season.

BOSTON'S SMART set at the North Shore, keyed to concert pitch in the cause of Sweet Charity, is all agog over Saturday's fete champetre and bazaar for Community Service and its round of effort for disabled ex-service men in hospitals hereabouts. A small legion of notable matrons are concerted, with Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien in a foremost place. The entertainment goes on almost around the clock and the place is Deer Cove Inn, at Swampscott, not far from White Court.

WHEN THE vivacious Miss Louise Mather Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Page of West Newton, becomes Mrs. John B. Morris tomorrow at the Page home in West Newton, she will have two attendants. Plans for the marriage are nearing completion, a sudden change therein hastening them considerably, as Miss Page was to have been an Autumn bride. With her chataigne coloring and penchant for the picturesque in attire, her bridal raiment should be unusually becoming. She came out some three Winters ago and belongs to the Vincent Club.

COLONIAL DAYS ON VIEW AT PORTSMOUTH

Portsmouth, N. H., July 29.—The Portsmouth of Colonial days has been viewed by the Summer colonists from along the Maine coast, and, as a result, several worthy charities in which the society leaders are interested, are considerably richer.

"Glimpses of Old Portsmouth" was the announced program for the celebration and in the old Colonial residences tea was served and numerous bridge and musicale long parties were held. The proceeds will be devoted to the library committee of the American Merchant Marine and the Americanization committee of the part-time school children of New York.

PRESBYTERIANS TO UNITE CHILDREN AROUND WORLD

Philadelphia, July 29 (A.P.).—Plans for organization of boys and girls of the Presbyterian Church around the world in one organization were announced today by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education through its general secretary, Dr. William Chalmers Covert. It is planned that organizations of boys and girls in any Presbyterian church shall be united in the world brothership of boys, or the world federation of girls. In the case of the boys this is an expansion of the associated Presbyterian boys' clubs, organized a few years ago.

WNAC Women's Club Member in Movies

"There I am!"

If you hear this elaculation at some of the movie theatres this week, you will know that it is a member of the WNAC Boston Evening American Women's Club recognizing herself in the motion pictures of the club outing at Sorosis Farm last Wednesday.

The pictures are being shown today at Loew's Orpheum, Loew's State, Gordon's Washington Street Olympia and Tremont Temple. The film includes pictures of the fat ladies' race and other features of the outing.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the film will be shown at Salem Theatre, Salem; Olympia, Lynn; Central Square, Cambridge, and the Strand, Dorchester.

Heat Fatal in Sweden

Malmo, Sweden, July 29 (A.P.).—An unprecedented heat wave has swept over Sweden the past week, causing several deaths. Many lightning storms have caused damage estimated at several million kroner.

HEIRESS HELD FOR BEATING HOTEL BILL

Syracuse Co-Ed Said to Be Married to Son of Chicago Man of Wealth

New York, July 28 (A.P.).—Arraigned in Yorkville Court on the charge of defrauding a hotel, a young woman, who said she was Miss Marietta B. Gallahorn, twenty-one, a co-ed of Syracuse University and heiress to a $50,000 fortune, was recognized by a spectator who said she is the wife of a son of a wealthy Chicago lumber man.

Miss Gallahorn refused to affirm or deny the identification. The spectator said that on March 13 last, after a night of revelry in Chicago, she married the Chicago man as the outcome of a bet which he lost. His parents refused to admit her to their home, he said, and her husband was taken to Jacksonville, Fla., where he is now.

Townsend Morgan, counsel for Miss Gallahorn, said the trustee of the girl's property had retained him to defend her. She has papers covering considerable holdings in her name, not now available, however, in a safe deposit vault in a Syracuse bank, he said.

Another attorney said he had communicated with the parents of her husband and had been assured that sufficient money will be forwarded to guarantee bail for her and pay her legal expenses.

Miss Gallahorn, who said she came here with $15,000 and lost most of it when a sharper persuaded her to invest in fake securities, was held for trial in special sessions.

JEALOUS BOY KILLS THREE, WOUNDS ONE

Shot All Who Got Between Him and Artist's Model

Richmond, Va., July 29 (A.P.)—His jealousy of Mrs. Vivian Tomlin Peers, former artist's model, he has confessed to police, caused Rudolph B. Disse, eighteen, to shoot her and two men to death and seriously wound another man in a sudden burst of gun play that has startled Richmond.

Detective Sergeant J. Harvey Burke, who died last night as the third victim of the shooting, was one of the two men whom Disse told the police he shot simply because he was afraid they would frustrate his purpose of killing H. G. Carter, the other victim and his supposed rival, after he had shot Mrs. Peers.

Willis Britt, who was seriously wounded, was a stranger to the others and had simply volunteered to take Mrs. Peers, Disse and Burke in his automobile while they were leaving police court yesterday.

Mrs. Peers had been arraigned on charges made by Disse and the latter was in court on charges by Carter that he had threatened him. Both cases were continued and as the two left court Burke arrested Disse on a bad check charge. He accompanied them with Britt when Mrs. Peers said she wanted to get some clothes at Disse's home.

Remaining in the car there as the other stepped to the sidewalk, Disse suddenly whipped out a pistol, eye witnesses said, and without warning shot down the woman and two men.

Rushing in the car to a restaurant owned by Carter in the downtown section, Disse burst through the door brandishing a pistol and shot Carter through the heart.

The youthful slayer was captured at a muzzle of a gun by a traffic policeman who boarded his car.

FIND HOME BREW IN AUTO AFTER CRASH

Franklin, N. H., July 29—A truck owned by Vincent Lotti of this place and a car driven by George W. Tobie of Wilmot collided here. Mr. Tobin received cuts in the knee and head. He was arrested on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Two quarts of home brew were found in his car.

READING URGES CENTRAL HEAD FOR POLICE

Middlesex Prosecutor Blames the Public for "Bootleggers' Paradise"

A single head for the police of all the cities and towns of the Metropolitan area was advocated by District Attorney Arthur K. Reading, of Middlesex County, speaking before the Woburn Rotary Club at Glendale Farm Inn.

District Attorney Reading spoke vigorously on the liquor situation, described the Somerville "Brickbottom" raid, scored the public for not giving the police more support and promised more sensational raids in the future if conditions are not improved.

"The surest way to bring about the repeal of an unpopular law is to enforce it," he declared, commenting on the district attorney's duty to enforce the laws as he finds them regardless of his personal opinion as to their reasonableness.

"In this county, one of the largest in the United States, with fifty-four cities and towns, there are more than 1,000,000 persons. There are of course fifty-four police organizations.

GOT REAL INVESTIGATORS.

"I sometimes think that one police organization would be a good thing. I do not say that for political purposes but when you realize that a culprit may within a few minutes pass from the bounds of one community into another and thereby delay apprehension, it would seem that central control would simplify police activities."

He declared that the "Brickbottom" district of Somerville, where the spectacular raid by State Police occurred two months ago, was the worst district he knew of. After he became district attorney, he said, there were five killings there but only one man could be brought to trial because of the difficulty of getting evidence from others living there.

"Then I engaged my own corps of investigators," he said. "And they were picked because they looked like tough fellows and again because of their ability to handle booze. It do not mean handle it with their hands, either."

PEOPLE TO BLAME.

"I want to tell you that businessmen could stamp out the bootlegging business now but they won't do it. Gunmen, murderers and general crooks, brought into bootlegging operations because they like to make money easy, drive up to the doors of honest business men in high-powered cars to dispose of their stuff.

"The people are largely responsible for these conditions because they won't get behind the police to help stamp out this business."

DAWES, IN WILDS FISHING, GETS HOOK IN HIS FINGER

Wagon Wheel Gap, Colo., July 29 (A.P.)—Seventeen miles from the nearest town and seven miles from a railroad, Vice-President Dawes is enjoying his first vacation in two years.

Here, in the heart of the Rockies, as the guest at the camp of Colonel A. E. Humphries, the Vice-President is spending his time fishing for mountain trout. One day he took a dozen rainbow and native trout, the record catch of the day.

After landing five yesterday, Mr. Dawes hooked his finger and drove seventeen miles to Creed to have the hook removed by a doctor.

Accompanying him are Mrs. Dawes, their children, Dana and Virginia; his secretary, E. R. Ross Hartley; his sister, Mrs. Harry B. Heyt, and son of Jacksonville, Fla.; his brother, Beban G. Dawes, and wife of Columbus, O., and former Senator Charles S. Thomas and Mrs. Thomas of Denver.

SERIOUSLY HURT IN PARK SQUARE CRASH

One man was seriously hurt and a woman suffered from shock when three autos became entangled in a crash at Park square and Boylston street.

Two of the cars were stopped, waiting for the traffic officer's "go" signal, when, according to the police, William P. Cullen, twenty-five years old, of Cambria street, Back Bay, smashed into them.

George McClellan, twenty-two years old, of Ocean Side Hotel, Magnolia, riding with Cullen, was rushed to City Hospital, where his name was on the danger list suffering from shock, injuries to his head and a fractured wrist.

The cars which were struck were driven by Michael J. Cannon of No. 826 Talbot avenue, Dorchester, and Thomas D. Wales, No. 48 Washington street, Brighton.

BATTER DOWN BISHOP'S DOOR IN CHURCH ROW

New York, July 29 (A.P.)—Shattering of the door in the residence of a Russian orthodox bishop with hatchets is to be followed by efforts to put him in jail. The door to Bishop Adam Phillipavsky's residence in the Cathedral of St. Nicholas, East Ninety-seventh street, was forced in an attempt to serve him a court order directing him to turn over the property to Archbishop Platon Dodnestvensky. When it seemed likely that a riot might result a police captain suggested that taking possession be deferred. This was agreed to.

Ballet Girls Will Usher in Gloria Gould's Theatre

New York, July 29 (A.P.)—Ushers in ballet costumes will direct patrons to $2 seats in the new motion picture theatre Mrs. Gloria Gould Bishop is to manage.

Attired in overalls, supervising the interior decorating at the theatre, the eighteen-year-old mother, dancer and author revealed to curious males her plans for the ultra smart playhouse with women employes exclusively.

"Shall the ushers be widows with red hair or would it be better to have young people—young people with very good legs," she asked.

GUM NO LONGER 'CHEWED FOR HARVARD'

New York Subway Slot Machines of Ward Estate Are Sold

New York, July 29.—The days of New York's teeming millions of subway riders are no longer working for John Harvard.

Announcement was made today that the profits of every penny deposited in subway vending machines for chewing gum and chocolates will hereafter go to a private firm, Barron G. Collier, Inc., instead of to the university.

Hitherto, the gum, advertising and other subway concessions were owned by Artemas Ward, Inc. When Mr. Ward died, a short time ago, his will provided that the residue of his estate should go to Harvard.

William B. Nesbitt, president of the Ward Company, at the time of the filing of the will announced that the benefits that would accrue to Harvard would depend in a large measure upon the rapidity with which New York's jaws operated upon the Ward chewing gum. It was estimated at the time that the Ward estate was worth between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

The Collier Company has purchased outright the interest of the Ward estate in the subway advertising and vending project.

Three Extraordinary Groups of Fur Coats in Hovey's

August Sale of Fur Coats

We took last year's "best selling" prices as our starting point because our experience has proved that these prices are the ones at which most women would like to buy their fur coat. Then we set out to match the values that met with such success last year at $165, $195 and $295.

Working closely with our best furriers, we took advantage of every opportunity to improve the values—watching the market closely for the best skins—having the coats made up in advance, so as to have the work done at a time when the furriers are not busy—we created the values for this sale.

We Have Not Only Equalled Last Year's Values, We Have Surpassed Them—$138 Instead of $165—$178 Instead of $195—$268 Instead of $295. In Other Words:

SWIG CHUCKLES OVER PARKING 'BOOMERANG'

'Auto Ban Hits Residents, but Helps His Quincy Dance Hall, Asserts Owner

Asserting that he had been forewarned by past attempts to hinder the activities of the Merrymount ball room in Quincy, and had purchased some time ago a large tract back of the dance hall for parking purposes, Simon Swig today said the ordinance prohibiting parking in certain streets in Wollaston and Atlantic in the vicinity would help the dance hall rather than injure it.

"We have our own parking place which will accommodate between 800 and 900 machines," said Mr. Swig, "directly behind Merrymount, and they can't keep machines from parking there."

Mr. Swig expressed mild amusement at what he termed a boomerang in that the amendment to the ordinance will prohibit persons living in Vassall, Apthorp, Davis, Bromfield and Beach streets, East Elm and West Elm avenues, Channing, Arnold, Carle, Milton, Webster, Hovey and Conant roads from leaving machines in front of their own homes.

"This amendment," asserted Mr. Swig, "I believe was undoubtedly inspired by members of the Wollaston Improvement Association, which numbers among its personnel members of the Wollaston and Squadtum Yacht clubs. These clubs are situated directly across from Merrymount and I can't see but what the club members are going to suffer from the same restrictions. I know it is aimed to present persons attending dances at Merrymount from parking in the nearby streets."

Lightning Rings Alarm for Fire It Starts

Rochester, N. H., July 29.—A freak storm played odd tricks. With the sun shining in a clear blue sky, while it rained, a single bolt of lightning struck a mill, started a fire, struck a fire alarm signal wire in the same place and thus automatically sent in an alarm for the fire it had started. A bolt passed clean through the plant of the Rochester Lumber Company, causing two holes in the roof.

VAHEY IGNORES 'L'S' SHAKY FINANCES

Says Road's Condition Has Nothing to Do With Men's Pay Demands

The financial condition of the Boston Elevated is immaterial to the 7,000 blue uniformed employes of the company in their demand for higher wages, according to James H. Vahey, the carmen's representative on the arbitration board that is considering the workers' demand for higher wages.

The hearings being conducted by the arbitration board were resumed at the State House today, with a large number of experts on hand ready to present their testimony for and against the increased wage demands. Sessions are expected to continue until Friday.

Attorney Vahey is presenting the same arguments in the Boston Elevated controversy that he used as a member of the wages arbitration board of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company last week. He insists that, even though the Elevated is going deeper and deeper into a financial abyss each year, that condition does not affect the right of the workers to demand higher wages.

The other members of the arbitration board besides Mr. Vahey are Judge Nelson P. Brown of the Superior Court, the neutral member of the board, and Roland P. Boyden, representing the Elevated trustees.

Mr. Vahey stated that the wages of motormen and conductors on the Elevated system are now 72½ cents an hour and they ask that they be raised to 75 cents an hour; men on the rapid transit lines ask for 97 cents an hour and operators of one-man cars and busses $1.42½ an hour. The company wants wages reduced to 65 cents an hour.

In discussing how the board of arbitration should fix wages Mr. Vahey argued that it should not only take into account the cost of living but the increase in the general standard of living, "which no one wants to see go down."

Quoting Herbert Hoover, he said that today there are 2,000,000 persons employed in industries making things which were not in use 10 years ago.

Eleonora repaid the gallant copper with a little smile of her own.

JONES DIVORCE CHARGES ARE KEPT SECRET

Famous Football Coach's Wife Starts Suppressed Suit at Denver

Denver, Colo., July 28 (A.P.).—Mrs. Leah Bissell Jones, whose home is in Denver, has filed a suppressed suit for divorce in the district court against Howard Jones, nationally known football coach.

Efforts to obtain details of the charges were unsuccessful.

Jones is head football coach at the University of Southern California.

Previously, as the football coach of the University of Iowa, Jones gained his greatest renown when his team defeated the Yale eleven, coached by his brother, "Tad" Jones, in 1922. He also has been gridiron coach at Ohio State and Trinity College, Durham, N. C.

This Summer Jones conducted a football coaching school at the Colorado Teachers' College at Greeley, Colo.

RUBBER JUNK HARVEST IN PROVIDENCE

British Monopoly Booms Sale of Second-Hand Auto Tires

Providence, July 29.—An epidemic of used-tire and junk-rubber thefts is spreading in Providence as the result of the sudden jump in rubber prices occasioned by Great Britain's restricting rubber exports.

Each day the reports of thefts become more numerous with the police, the increase accompanying a jump of 600 per cent. in the offered price for rubber seconds.

Men in wagons, unlicensed, are touring the city buying up old rubber and stealing what they cannot buy, according to complaints of residents.

One garage dealer lost twenty-eight used tires from the roof of the garage at No. 870 Eddy street, and spare tires are being stolen from automobiles, for the rubber alone.

A Providence man, who for months has been wondering where he could dump sixty tons of rubber scraps, old tires and general second-hand rubber, without being arrested, discovered today that his "junk" was worth $3,600 in real money.

ELEONORA CAN'T BE BEAT, SAYS NEWPORT COP

Newport, July 29.—Eleonora Sears has gone back to Boston, but not before she received from Newport's leading observer of society a gesture of admiration and an expression of professional approval.

"S'no use talking," rumbled Traffic Officer Casey after waving to the Boston and Beverly sportswoman as she drove past in her car. "You gotta hand it to her. No matter if she's in Newport, Paris, London or at Wimbledon, Miss Sears always get the glad hand."

Eleonora, a guest at the Churchill-Vanderbilt wedding Saturday, beamed brightly down on the officer as she passed in the sporty car, which may have had something to do with it.

She wore a Panama hat turned up on one side, down on the other; Norfolk jacket with a gardenia where it should be, and a four-in-hand tie. After she rolled past Officer Casey she headed the baggage-laden car for Boston, via Fall River.

BLAME NOVICE'S PANIC FOR FATAL AIR CRASH

The sudden panic of a "novice" is believed by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin to be responsible for the death of Lieutenant Mark C. Hogue and his passenger, George Burroughs, when the airplane in which they were riding, crashed at East Boston, almost a week ago.

The Registrar, from the report of his inspector, is unable to exactly determine the cause of the tragedy, but he is inclined to believe that Burroughs, in a sudden spasm of fright, held the controls in his cockpit so firmly that Lieutenant Hogue could not take the plane from the nose dive in which it headed.

INDIAN MEDIUM IS FREED OF CHARGE

Greenfield, July 29 (A.P.).—Chief Rheamount, Indian medium, arrested several weeks ago on a four-year-old warrant for assault and battery during a seance at Lake Pleasant, had his case dismissed in local court today. Converse Nickerson, a fellow-medium, who brought the complaint, did not appear.

Nickerson, to expose Rheamount's seance methods, threw a flashlight on the Indian medium during a seance.

COOLIDGE NOT TO CALL ARMS CONFERENCE

Waits for European Nations to Settle Minor Troubles Before Acting

By JOHN T. LAMBERT,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

The most ambitious plan of President Coolidge's entire foreign policy stands blocked today by the European nations.

That he has decided it would be useless to summons the World Powers to another conference for reduction of military forces until the nations of Europe have entered into a security pact such as was at first proposed by Germany two years ago, was definitely stated at the Summer White House.

TO WAIT UNTIL 1926.

He must yet await the time when stable conditions in Europe will hold the largest hope of possible accomplishment in arms reduction through a world conference, it was stated. Until Germany, France, England and the other involved nations unite in a pact for their mutual security he believes they will be unable to determine how far they could go in reducing their military and naval establishments.

The indication is that President Coolidge must now wait until 1928 to accomplish his ambition of another world conference on arms limitation.

Styles set by men and women largely determine the prosperity of the woolen industry is the belief of President Coolidge.

VIEWS ON WOOLENS.

He was recently informed by Lieutenant-Governor Allen, an old friend and prominent manufacturer, that during the last year the styles called for general woolens rather than worsted, and that the latter industry suffered a falling off in financial income. The Fall styles are shifting back to worsted, the President was informed. He shares Allen's theory of the cause and results.

President Coolidge believes that more woolens are being made generally in this country than before the war and he was astounded recently when the Department of Commerce gave him figures of the enormous increase in the production of cotton goods in the United States.

BIG DIRIGIBLE FIGHTS FOG AND STORM

Lakehurst, N. J., July 29 (A.P.)—After thirty hours in the air, during which thunder showers and fog were constantly encountered, the navy dirigible Shenandoah returned from maneuvers off the Virginia coast.

Commander Zachary Lansdowne reported a successful cruise, no trouble being encountered except the bad weather.

Off the Virginia coast the Shenandoah was enveloped in a fog for eight hours, and during the return trip had to dodge her way through several squalls.

MILTON FIREMEN SAVE HORSE STUCK IN MUD

A horse that had been partly buried twenty-four hours in the mud flats near Brook Pond, East Milton, was liberated from his imprisonment by the fire department of Milton. The horse had been pasturing in the nearby fields, and on Monday, when he was missed, the police were notified to be on the lookout for a thief.

A passerby heard the groans of the animal and notified the fire department.

BOSTON GIRL BRIDE RETAINS HER NAME

With the June brides already all but forgotten, society here is showing lively interest in the romance of Gertrude Bradford DeWolf of this city and Bradford Colt DeWolf of Bristol, R. I. They were married at the home of relatives in Bristol. The Rev. Frederick Lee Maryon of Trinity Church, Bristol, officiated. Mark Anthony DeWolf, the bride's brother, gave her in marriage. J. Barnard French was best man. Mr. and Mrs. DeWolf will live in the late Colonel Samuel P. Colt's home in Bristol.

OLIVER STREET TO BE PAVED SHORTLY

Oliver street was due to rise from its "No Man's Land" condition today to a chorus of relief from every autoist and truck driver who has had occasion to travel that much-used thoroughfare for the last few weeks.

Public Works Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke, in washing the city's hands of responsibility for the torn up area, places the blame squarely on public service corporations. Today he declares the paving blocks were to be relaid.

Says Mr. Rourke:

"Regarding the complaints received of the condition of Oliver street, which is included in our paving program for this year: The public service corporations are completing their underground work, and the Western Union Company with its own forces has built a conduit line the length of the street next to one curb. In order that the paving blocks be brought to grade, this company has spread a lot of sand on the surface today in order to dry it out preparatory to going in tomorrow to relay the blocks on filled in gravel base.

"The various corporations on their underground work in streets to be paved either through their own force or through contractors, are obliged to maintain the temporary pavement until such time as the city starts in on the contract work of reconstructing the street with permanent pavement.

"We are meeting with better success than formerly in having all the underground work completed prior to the permanent paving, and this necessarily means that during a certain period these streets will not be in the best condition for traffic purposes."

CONSUL'S WOMAN AIDE SEIZED IN RUM CASE

New York, July 29 (A.P.)—Mrs. Margaret Giovanoni, secretary to Pierre P. Mopacchini, French Vice-Consul, was under arrest today as the result of a raid upon his former apartment on Riverside Drive in which prohibition agents seized three bottles of rare liquors. The raid was made on complaint of A. N. Mirzoff, a Persian nobleman and writer, to whom Monacchini sublet the apartment when he went to France after failing to obtain a divorce here recently. The nobleman complained that champagne, cognac and other liquors were being illegally shipped to Mrs. Giovanoni.

Mr. Lombard was prominently identified with the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and had been a resident of this city for many years.

3,000 SHARE IN AMERICAN'S 2D BIG OUTING

"The sun!"

A roar of delight welcomed the breaking up of the murky sky as 3,000 mothers and children made their way to Nantasket on the second outing sponsored by the Boston Evening American.

Starting with misgivings, though their spirits were high, the kiddies bubbled over with joy when they saw their excursion day change to a day of sunshine, and with their thankfulness at the appearance of the sun, they outdid the first outing party of a week ago with their pep and ginger.

The salt water had a sharp tang to it but the children had fun daring each other to duck, and as the day progressed the water grew warmer under the sun's rays.

The treats that feature all the Mothers' and Children's Outings of the Boston Evening American were there for the party, including free milk, from H. P. Hood & Sons, free cookies from Loose-Wiles Company, makers of Sunshine Biscuits, and use of the lockers at the Sagamore Baths at the beach.

The use of the Nantasket boats was donated by Manager Fred Lane and Assistant Manager James Griffin of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company.

The next outing will take place on Tuesday, August 4.

TODAY

ment of a "liar, coward and fool" is not clear.

This writer used to see Gladstone every day in the fighting prime of his old age, and can testify that Gladstone had little time for foolishness.

Every night he sat on the Opposition Bench as late as 3 o'clock in the morning, in the House of Commons.

AND IN the ladies' gallery, where the women sat, hidden from sight by heavy screen, that beauty might not distract lawmakers, there sat, when the weather was bad, Mr. Gladstone's aged wife, staying in the House as long as he did.

She met him at the entrance, under the clock tower, with a heavy woolen muffler, wrapped it around his neck and took him home.

If there ever was a man whose memory even a modern writer should respect it is William E. Gladstone, of whom it was truly said that "his heart was ever with the weak and miserable poor."

SOCIETY BRIDE AT SISTER'S BEDSIDE

Mr. and Mrs. Church Return From White Mountains to Aid Consuelo

Newport, R. I., July 29.—Frederick Cameron Church, Boston insurance man and former Harvard athlete, and his bride, who was Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, are back in Newport spending a major portion of their honeymoon in a sick room.

The coupe are in almost constant attendance on Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, sister of the bride, who yesterday underwent an operation for appendicitis.

The bridal party returned here from an unnamed place in the White Mountains, where they had motored in a hired automobile shortly after their fashionable wedding last Saturday.

Word of the impending operation was wired the honeymooners and they returned immediately.

Today physicians announced that the condition of the patient was good and that, barring unexpected complications, she would recover.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, July 29 (A.P.)—The military government has notified former President Gonzalo S. Cordova to leave the country or sign an agreement that he will abstain from political activity.

Furnish Home for Comfort, Not to Show, Is Tip

"Furnish your home for your family, not for the neighbors," is the slogan voiced by Miss Marion L. Tucker, expert on clothing and furnishings at Massachusetts Agricultural College, speaking to 160 women at the seventh annual Farm and Home Week at Amherst College.

"Elimination and rearrangement of furnishings rather than acquisition is a good idea for most homes," she declared. "Most houses have too much furniture in them, so much, in fact, that the families cannot move around with ease. So the family goes out and the home becomes a mere place to sleep."

OFFERS TO WED WOMAN HE HAS NEVER SEEN

Pittsfield Man's Proposal to 'Thrill Death' Widow Is Probed

Pittsfield, July 29.—The offer of Giovanni Caprone of the town of Tinsdale near here to marry Mrs. Mary Panella, widow of the taxi driver alleged to have been slain by Philip Knox Knapp, soldier-deserter and son of a wealthy Syracuse, N. Y., family, at Hempstead, L. I., was being investigated today by Joseph Leonardo, counsel for the Italian Press Association.

Caprone, a widower since last March, says he is the owner of a 100-acre farm. He is a carpenter and says he earns $42 weekly.

The Tinsdale man has never seen the widow, apparently learning of her through newspaper accounts of the penniless plight she was left in because of the murder.

Friends of Mrs. Panella turned the proposal over to the Italian society for investigation.

Mrs. Panella has two children. Caprone declared he would gladly care for them.

PUSHCART MEN CROWN A KING AND QUEEN

East Side Pedlars Flocks to $5-a-Plate Banquet, Called by Gold Invitations

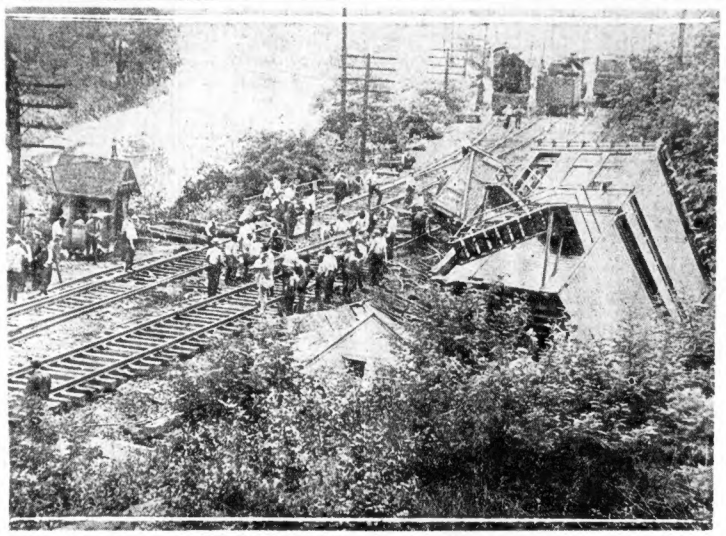
New York, July 29 (A.P.).—Pedlars of the East Side who vend from massed pushcarts everything from pickles to fur coats, evidently have their periods of affluence, for 280 of them attended a $5 a plate testimonial dinner at which the King and Queen of the peddles were crowned.

In response to gold inscribed invitations, guests sat under varicolored lights concealed by crystal pendants about the dais, in the center of which an electrically lighted fountain played.

The Queen, Mrs. Molly Barasch, wore a real diamond studded diadem and a white dress embellished with lace. The menu was gold embossed and a forty-eight page souvenir program was distributed.

Morris Loopesko, the King, and Mrs. Barasch were presented with four-foot-square gilt framed testimonials attesting to their aid in promotion of the welfare of peddlers of the city. Messages from Mayor Hylan and other city officials were read.

TRAIN IN FREAK WRECK DEMOLISHES HOUSE



(International News Real Photo.)

Railroad men declare the wreck pictured above was one of the strangest in the history of railroading in the East. At Thornburg, near Pittsburgh, Pa., several freight cars jumped the track, crashed into a signal tower, toppling the house over. One signalman was hurt, but two escaped without a scratch.

'LIAR' HURLED IN ATTACK ON GLADSTONE

Late Premier's Son Resents Wright's Flings at Father's Morals

London, July 29.—The morals of Victorian statesmen were debated widely in England in consequence of a sensational attack on the memory of William E. Gladstone by Captain Peter Wright, well-known author.

In his book, "Portraits and Criticisms," Captain Wright said:

"Gladstone founded the great tradition since observed by many of his followers with such pious fidelity: In public to speak the language of highest and strictest principls and in private to pursue and possess every sort of woman."

Lord Gladstone, son of the greatest of all the Victorian statesmen, came back with tears and invective, writing Wright:

"You are a liar, a coward and a fool."

Wright retorted that he stood by his statements which were based on information received from Lord Milner, now dead. He specifically accused Gladstone of allowing women to influence his foreign policy and denouncing Parnell's misbehavior with Mrs. Kitty O'Shea after encouraging it.

Lord Gladstone declared he will continue to attack Wright until the writer sues him and asserted the author will then have to substantiate his allegations in court.

"I repeat he is a liar and a coward," said his lordship. "Let him sue me."

This Wright has thus far declined to do.

DOUBT IF DEAD 'NOBODY' IS SCOTT

Chicago, July 29 (A.P.).—Scant hope is held by the police that an unidentified man who killed himself in a Reading, Pa., hotel is Robert Scott, brother of Russell Scott, under sentence of death for killing a drug clerk in a holdup and deserted by Russell as the actual slayer.

The description of the suicide, who cut all labels from his clothing and left a note: "I am nobody from nowhere," tallies only slightly with that of the missing Scott. Since Russell's two escapes from the gallows a few hours before time set for his hanging attracted national attention, Robert has been reported found in various parts of the country.

The dead man was described as about twenty-five years old, 144 pounds, gray eyes, light brown hair, five feet nine inches tall, gold tooth in upper jaw, small scar on temple.

The description of Robert is: Twenty-five years old, five feet 11 inches tall; 169 pounds, blue eyes, medium complexion, heavy brown hair and slim nose, no scars.

Thomas Scott, father of Russell and Robert, said he could not tell from the description whether the suicide was Robert.

Meanwhile alienists continue to examine Russell in Murderers' Row in the county jail pending a hearing Monday to decide whether he has become insane.

MILK BUYERS FIGHT BUREAUCRATIC RULE

Philadelphia, July 29 (A.P.).—A protest against any attempt to "foist long-distance bureaucratic control" on the cooperatives by the Federal government was voiced today before the American Institute of Cooperation by John D. Miller of New York, president of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation and vice-president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association.

"Cooperative marketing associations seek no government subsidy and are unalterably opposed to bureaucratic control," he declared.

Wales Off For South America Today

Capetown, Union of South Africa, July 29 (A.P.).—H. M. S. Repulse is ready in the harbor of Simon's Town, the Cape Colony Station 20 miles south of Capetown, to take the Prince of Wales on his long voyage to South America, on which he is to start this afternoon.

Ideal weather prevailed today, and the Prince spent a restful morning. He had luncheon with Governor General, the Earl of Athlone, and the Countess of Athlone, after which he motored to Simon's Town to board the Repulse.

VICTIMS OF ELK WRECK ON WAY BACK EAST

Gallup, N. M., July 29 (A.P.)—The New England Elk special train which was wrecked near here, left Gallup over the Santa Fe Railway.

BRIGANDS ASK RANSOM FOR DR. HOWARD

Peking, July 29 (A.P.).—Consular advices say that ransom, in money and cartridges, has been demanded by the brigands who captured Dr. Harvey J. Howard, of the Rockefeller Hospital in Peking, more than a week ago while he was visiting at the Manchurian ranch of Morgan Palmer, a native of New York State.

The amount of ransom is not specified and the whereabouts of Dr. Howard is not revealed. The demand is said to have been forwarded to Samuel Sokobin, American consul at Mukden, who is near the ranch, investigating the bandits' attack.

Morgan Palmer, long a resident of China, was killed on the day that Dr. Howard was captured, July 20. Because of the isolated location of the ranch, where the attack took place, on the Sungari River, details of the affair have not been received.

It is known, however, that the mother of Mr. Palmer, a son of Dr. Howard, and Harold Baldwin, formerly of Derby, Ct., and his wife and child, who were at the ranch at the time, escaped.

Peking advices several days ago expressed the belief that General Chang Tso-Lin would be stirred to action against the bandits, as Mr. Palmer was personally known and highly regarded by him.

The RED LACQUER CASE

by PATRICIA WENTWORTH

A Thrilling Novel of Love and Adventure, Mystery and Intrigue That Every-One Will Want to Read

SALLY MEREDITH, nervy niece of

M. FREDERICK LASALLE, war gas inventor, is intrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the formula is destroyed by one not in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMITAGE, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enter the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case.

ETTA SHAW, once friend of Sally, lures the girl to London. She is made a prisoner by Lazare, the Goggled Terror. Lazare attempts to terrirze Sally, but fails. Sally's jailers learn from spies that Bill is coming to search Etta's house, the prison. Etta pretends to let Sally escape so that they may recapture her when Bill goes. Bill finds Lasalle.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

BILL after he left the Shaw house groped his way through the woods. He didn't know that in the very same woods Sally was hiding from the pursuit of Lazare and his band. Suddenly he heard a grasping sound. He knew the tone. It sounded like Sally. It must be Sally.

Then Bill made a discovery.

There under the bank stood Sally. The ray of light passed between shadowing boughs, and Bill saw her. His heart leapt. He saw her. The ray of light passed on. He had seen her, and in his mind he saw her still, standing close in under the bank, almost knee deep in water, bare-headed, the short, bright hair dragged, dishevelled, the little white face piteous beyond words, the eyes blank with terror. His Sally, his little, little Sally. They had brought her to this! What had they done to her? She was so damned plucky, and they had brought her to this. A blazing fury of rage took him stumbling forward. He half spoke her name, and then his foot caught in a loop of root, and he came down heavily in a fog of mud and slime. As he fell he heard the sound of someone running. It came from behind him.

CHAPTER XXVII.

When Etta Shaw was left alone in Miss Harriet's room she sat quite still for a moment, with a frightened look on her face, her hands tightly clasped in front of her. Then suddenly she seemed to wake into restless activity. With a start she jumped up, opened the door, found the passage empty, and came along it and down the stairs with a rush that shocked Sascha to his feet.

Etta's wild rush brought her to the edge of the door light, and then she stopped, panting and panting. When a figure stepped out of the darkness, she called out on a thin, high note, and got back a "Stiltering Cat!" from Nadine, at which she choked and was quiet. Nadine's voice, low as it was, held so much cutting contempt that it froze her words and sobs. She stood and stared until Nadina shook her by the shoulder.

"What is it? Why do you run out—cry out? Has anything happened?"

"He has come back."

Etta whispered the words.

"Who has come back? Le Moir? Does Lazare know?"

Etta shook her head.

"No, no, not Le Moir."

"Who then? Quick! Who has come back? Ciel, woman, if I had a knife you should feel the point! Who has come back?"

"Major Armitage—and I think—"

"You think? Where is he?"

"I don't know—I don't know."

Nadina's grip tightened on the quivering shoulder.

"You've seen him?"

"Yes."

"Talked to him?"

"Yes, yes."

"What did he want? How did he get in?"

"I don't know. He said he wasn't satisfied, and then he left me in Aunt Harriet's room and went—"

"Where?" The word was jerked at Etta.

"I don't know—I don't know."

"You never do, now!"

Nadine swung her to one side and began to run down the hill towards the lake. She had seen the flash of Lazare's torch, and the first thing to do was to warn him that Major Armitage had returned. She switched on her own torch as she ran, and, shifting it to her left hand, drew from the pocket of her nurse's apron a small automatic pistol.

Bill Armitage, a little dazed and still shaken by a gust of fury, heard the sound of her running feet, the tap tap of them on the gravel changing to a sucking sound where the bog began. Then, as he scrambled to his knees, slipping and grasping at branches that betrayed him, the footsteps ceased, something pressed cold against his neck, and a deep, cool voice said quietly:

"Hands up, Major Armitage, or I fire."

Bill's rage overpowered him. He kicked out violently in the direction of the voice, and promptly fell face downwards in the mud. The pistol pressed hard upon his neck. The voice said viciously, "If you move you're dead," and then, rising a tone or two, called on a resonant, carrying note, "Lazare! Lazare!"

Sally had not seen Bill. The ray of light which rested on her had not reached him. She had not seen him, but she had heard his footsteps on one side of her, knew Lazare to be coming up on the other, and felt herself hemmed in, past hope of escape. When he slipped and fell she shuddered all over and bit deep into her lip to stop herself from screaming. She must not scream. She must stay quite, quite still, and perhaps they would not find her. She stood holding on to a slimy root, the water up to her knees and icy cold, her woven skirt sopping wet, her hands wet and so dreadfully cold, and standing like that, all in the dark, she saw the flicker of Nadine's torch, and heard her say Bill's name.

Bill! It was Bill!

She had been so terrified of that heavy tread, and it was Bill all the time. Everything seemed to shake. Nadine's voice came from very far away.

"If you move, you're dead."

She was speaking to Bill. She was armed and Bill was not, and he had slipped and fallen in that horrible mud. Sally tried to think but she seemed capable only of holding on tightly to the slippery spot. She tried to let go of it, to move, to do something, but her fingers remained rigidly closed. And then Nadine called out, and Lazare came running along the path, his torch sending a dancing beam before him, his voice answering Nadine.

"Here, I've got Major Armitage. Quick, my friend!"

They spoke French. Sally heard Lazare pass her, his tread sounding almost above her head as he came round the hairpin bend. Then there was the confused sound of some sort of struggle, and Lazare saying low and viciously:

"Do you want to be shot? What a fool you are, Major Armitage."

Sally trembled from head to foot. It was so dark. The light came and went. There were bushes between her and these three on the path beyond. What was happening? She could hear Bill's voice now, half choked. What were they doing to him? And then Lazare spoke, coming forward a little and pitching his voice so that it would carry without being loud.

"Miss Sally, are you there?"

No answer. Sally could just see him now, a dark figure at the water's edge. He swung his torch in a half circle, and called again:

"I know you're here. What is the use of trouble you give! It is most unwise of you. I have seen footprints, so you see I know that you are here. If you do not immediately come out, we shall shoot Major Armitage. I don't think anyone will look for him in the lake. Do you hear, Miss Sally?"

No answer. The torch swept round and back again. It was strange to see green leaf and pale folded bud spring into view as the beam touched the darkness. Strange to see the little rippled waves each with its tiny shadow. If Lazare have all our aerial eggs in the basket."

Saugus Parents Boycott Bridge in School Row

DANGER FOR CHILDREN SEEN

Holes In Structure Big Enough for Horse to Fall Through, Say Citizens

A boycott of the Saugus public schools is threatened unless the authorities rebuild the present ramshackle bridge across the Saugus River.

Notice has been served on members of the Board of Selectmen that the parents of the children living across the river from the town schools will refuse to place their children's lives in jeopardy when the school term opens, and will keep the children at home until the State authorities take action.

The parents are content to let the matter rest with the State school authorities, believing that the town will be compelled to build a substantial bridge in place of the present structure.

For months the bridge has been a bone of contention in Saugus. Last Spring a school girl fell through one of the openings in the floor of the structure and was only saved from death by the intervention of a man, who leaped into the river and rescued the youngster.

Parents of the children complain that there are holes in the bridge floor large enough for a horse to fall through. Many of the residents insist they are unable to have groceries and other supplies delivered to their homes because of the condition of the structure.

Residents along McCullough and Saville streets are the principal sufferers from the condition of the bridge and they are planning to employ an attorney to take legal action to compel the town to make the bridge safe.

Authorities on school law today were agreed that the parents could not be compelled to send their children to school if it is adequately proven that the youngsters' lives are endangered in crossing the bridge. The attorneys also admitted that there would be little difficulty in proving such a contention with the bridge in its present condition.

PROTESTS SENDING ALL AIRPORTS WEST

Washington, July 29.—Senator Copeland, Democrat, of New York, today proposed a Congressional investigation of the plan of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to transfer all of the Navy's fighter-than-air activities to the Pacific Coast. Copeland said he intended to "find out" why the transfer was suggested.

"My first impression of the Secretary's order," said Copeland, "is one of disappointment. It would be a calamity to dismantle the dirigible bases and great air stations like Lakehurst, N. J. It is bad policy to

STATE BUS LAW IN EFFECT

Companies in Rush at State House to Get Protected by Insurance

Following the failure of the Motor Coach and Bus Association of Massachusetts to file sufficient names with its petition for a referendum on the bus control act, the measure became effective in the Bay State today.

There is a rush on at the State House by the various bus companies to secure the certificates of operation which the new law demands.

Meanwhile, State authorities are saying nothing about the sensational charges of the officers of the Motor Coach and Bus Association that the theft of a package of petitions containing 12,666 signatures was responsible for the failure of the company to evoke the referendum in regard to the new law.

The bus association officers claim that at the eleventh hour an employe did away with a section of the referendum petition containing the names of 12,000 citizens, and without this petition they were powerless to act.

Day Baker, business agent for the Motor Coach and Bus Association, appeared at the State House with petitions containing 19,322 names, asking for a referendum on the new law. The law requires 15,000 signatures to a referendum petition.

Mr. Baker explained that additional petitions containing 12,666 names had been filched from his files by an employe.

MEANING OF LAW.

According to the new law every company operating a passenger bus line must obtain a permit from the State Department of Public Works, giving it the right to use the roads, and in addition must get a certificate from the Department of Public Utilities showing the line is required by "public necessity and convenience."

These State permits and certificates must be obtained in addition to the permits from the governing authorities of the various cities and towns. Buses operating on interstate routes, however, do not come under the provisions of the act as long as they do not transport passengers between two points both within the limits of Massachusetts.

ACCUSED VERMONT POSTMASTER OUSTED

Springfield, Vt., July 29.—L. C. Rhoades, for the past three years postmaster at Chester, a village seven miles from here, and president of the Vermont Postmaster Association, has been removed from office and L. A. Carpenter, prominent Chester merchant, has been appointed acting postmaster following the finding last week of alleged defalcations involving the embezzlement of $6,000 of government funds.

MARY HAD A LITTLE SCARE

"Doug" Fairbanks is telling Prosecutor McCartney in Los Angeles court that his wife, Mary Pickford, is not to be kidnaped, not if he knows it. The three other men are the accused; it is even said they were ready to kidnap any star for the sake of a few dollars. They are: Claude A. Holcomb, Adrian A. Woods and C. Z. Stevens. As to their confessions, it is said they were beaten out of them by detectives, at the rate of a fact for a punch.

Los Angeles, July 29 (A.P.).—Testimony to substantiate further charges of brutality on the part of police and detectives in handling suspects in the Mary Pickford kidnaping cases was promised by the defence today.

Claude Holcomb testified that virtually all the detective work on the case by police consisted of punching the three suspects to make them willing to confess they had plotted to kidnap Mary Pickford. Jackie Coogan, Pola Negri and as many other motion picture celebrities as the press agents of Hollywood could muster.

Holcomb said his face had been battered by his questioners at police headquarters and that he finally signed a confession because he was afraid they would "punch me every day until I did."

Defence counsel added to this the charge that Charles Stevens, another of the defendants, sustained three broken ribs during the process of making his "confession."

Douglas Fairbanks could not remember the street number of the studio where he and Miss Pickford made pictures, but he testified to having seen two of the defendants loitering about the studio gate on several occasions.

Barns to Go, too, in Sign Wrecking Move?

Augusta, Me., July 29.—Maine farmers living along the principal highways of the State are wondering how the new anti-billboard law works out.

With the Maine State police, armed with axes and crowbars, engaged in removing all billboards and other advertising signs within "the limits of the highways," the farmers want to know if their barns and other outbuildings are to be razed by the officers.

For years back some of the Maine farmers whose buildings are located near public highways have solved the painting problem in a simple manner.

The farmers permit an advertising company to adorn their barns and other outbuildings with giant letters announcing to the world the merits of their wares. The barn is painted and saved from the elements—the artistic effect of the announcement never occurs to the farmer as anything to worry about.

The State police have removed the signs from "hot dog" and refreshment stands along the highways, even when the are erected entirely on the owner's property.

AUTO TRUCK WHISTLE FACES TRIAL FRIDAY

But the exhaust and the compression whistle of the automobile truck goes on trial before Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin on Friday afternoon.

Recently the registrar issued an order banning all exhaust whistles on motor vehicles in Massachusetts after August 1. Truck owners and members of the Motor Truck Club protested this ruling and the hearing is the result.

While the truck operators were responsible for taking the initiative, a number of passenger cars also are equipped with exhaust whistles and their owners will be given the right to be heard on the question.

DEATH RACE VICTOR IS DOOMED

Soldier Brought Home From Denver by Father Happy In Closing Hours

The Death Angel hovers over the home of Herbert W. Glidden at No. 822 Washington street, Whitman, but within the humble household there is rejoicing rather than sorrow.

George Glidden, eighteen-year-old son of the household, is back home. He is on his deathbed, but kneeling by his side is his father, who is rejoiced that after five years of estrangements, his boy is back under the parental roof again.

The father, after a quick dash across the continent to Denver, brought his boy back home from a government hospital where the lad was rapidly succumbing to the ravages of tuberculosis.

The physicians declared the youthful sufferer could not be moved. They told the father the excitement incident to the trip east would be fatal. But father and son agreed to attempt the journey and today, the boy is home again in the bed he occupied as a lad in short breeches, apparently no worse off for the long train ride.

Five years ago, when the Gliddens lived in Reading, Mass., a difference between the father and two of his sons sprung up. The boys left home. Meanwhile, the father moved to Whitman. George, the son, seeking romance and adventure, enlisted in the United States army and was stationed at various posts in the western part of the country.

WROTE BOY FRIEND.

The lad refused to write home. He even refused to tell the army authorities that his father was living, even after physicians in the government hospital told him his span of life was short.

Finally, the boy gave the hospital superintendent the name of a boy friend in Reading and through a letter written to this friend, the father learned of his son's plight.

The father immediately left for Denver. He secured the consent of the army officials to move his son East and during the trip across the continent he acted as nurse and doctor.

IS HAPPY NOW.

Arriving in South Station, the lad was carried on a stretcher from his Pullman compartment to a waiting truck and the last stage of the journey was made at a snail's pace to prevent a fatal hemorrhage from setting in.

Today the lad is near death, but he is cheerful and happier than he has been in years, according to the stories he whispers to those about him.

Physicians who are attending him declare the end is not far off—that the fatal hemorrhage may come at any minute, but father and son are supremely happy as they await the chilling hand of the Grim reaper.

URGES U. S. CONTROL OF 'ELECTRIC MONOPOLY'

Philadelphia, July 29 (A.P.)—Advocating control by the Federal government of electric power rights instead of leaving such control to the States alone, Governor Pinchot attacked the policies of Secretary of Commerce Hoover with reference to the "electric monopoly."

Speaking before the annual Congress of the American Institute of Co-operation, the Governor said: "Mr. Hoover says it is a local problem, and can only be handled locally, and this vast nationwide monopoly has got to be dealt with by individual States acting alone, which, of course, is to laugh."

Yankee Athletes Will Be Allowed to Reply to the Foreign Critics

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY.

If Loren Murchison and Charley Paddock, Yankee athletes, demand an investigation of the charges that they displayed an aptitude in the gathering of marks, kronen and pounds that impressed Continentals as being altogether too great for amateurs, they shall not be disappointed.

And even if they did not demand an investigation, there will be one anyway, as soon as they arrive home. William C. Prout, chairman of the A. A. U. foreign relations committee, said so today, and in a voice which indicated that the probe is not likely to end by the mere sealing of cigar boxes which, according to tradition, are the favorite repositories of amateur rewards.

"There will certainly be an investigation," declared Mr. Prout, "just as soon as we receive the official reports from the athletic authorities of France, Sweden and Germany.

"Of course we will await the reports of the two athletes involved, Murchison and Paddock, before beginning our probe."

Whether the investigation will have any effect upon Germany's entrance into the League of Nations is not the fact that concerns the A. A. U. But the air has gradually become supercharged with rumors, some vague, others not so vague, that the strictly amateur athlete is fast becoming as extinct as the well-known Dodo. And in the U. S. an attempt will be made to save the amateur from passing out of existance.

The charge that Paavo Nurmi on his recent visit here had lost his bearings and thought that he was so far from Finland that it would take lots of money to buy a return ticket, happily proved to be exaggerated. Those who made the charges were strangely lacking in eloquence when the time came for a showdown, and they departed wearing the halo of an amateur.

But the charges against Murchison and Paddock that have come from Germany and Sweden, no matter what their volume when uttered by the original Teutonic brave, have echoed on these shores like the roll of thunder. This may be due, of course, to the fact that the accused boys are Americans, and should they have even laid themselves open to suspicion.

One explanation of the origin of the charges is that foreign promotors of meets in which American take part are over-generous in their offers to amateurs. The temptation is offered, and is supposed to be scorned.

The sin comes in accepting "expenses" as offered and the howl from the vampire then reaches the heavens and in this case the United States.

FARRINGTON JOINS ANDOVER COACHING STAFF

Andover, July 29.—Ray Shepard, football coach at Phillips Academy, will have three assistants when the season opens in the Fall. All three will be members of the faculty.

Frank M. Benton, who has assisted in developing the line in past years, is again available. John Crocker, the ex-Harvard player, will have charge of the ends, while Farrington, a former Bowdoin star, will look after the backfield. He will be a new member of the faculty.

TEDESCO NET TOURNEY ON SCREEN

Many youthful star tennis players are making their appearance this week in the sixth annual North Shore championship tournament, which started on last Saturday and will continue for the remainder of this week at the Tedesco Country Club, Swampscott.

The committee in charge is going to give the members of the Tedesco club a real treat this evening by producing on the screen in the clubhouse pictures of these tennis stars in action.

The latest slow motion tennis analysis pictures, owned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association and showing the strokes of Miss Helen Wills, William T. Tilden, 2nd., G. L. Patterson, N. E. Brooks, Pat O'Hara Wood and Manuel Alonzo will also be thrown on the screen.

Today competition in the men's and women's singles and doubles and in the mixed doubles is carded.

Mrs. J. D. Cobiere is the leading light in the women's play. The Southboro women won the title last year and is expected to repeat. Her play in the singles and doubles matches yesterday was great.

* * *

Miss Polly Palfrey of Longwood, joint holder of the State girls' doubles title is one of the attractive young stars who is dazzling the spectators with her playing.

Tedesco Club members are looking forward to Mrs. A. L. Robinson of Swampscott, who holds the club championship, giving Mrs. Corbiere a hard match.

Look Wel, captain of the Chinese Davis Cup team is among the individuals being closely followed.

* * *

George A. Dill, chairman of the golf tournament committee and Sydney Dutton, club pro are kept busy throughout the day keeping things going.

May Rule Jack No Longer Champion

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

New York, July 29.—From an authoritative source, the writer learned today that the New York State Athletic Commission, failing to hear anything further from Jack Dempsey, the well-known man-about-America, will declare the heavyweight title vacated and order an elimination match between Harry Wills and Gene Tunney. The action in question may be taken not later than Tuesday next, by which time the commission has signified that it will discover it has been somewhat ignored by our champion.

The commission has heard nothing from Dempsey since the agile young man walked into its offices several weeks ago, verbally accepted the Wills challenge, made an engagement for the following Tuesday, and then went West. The commission almost feels affronted about the thing.

ETTA DRUIEN MAKES WORLD'S RECORD

Aurora, Ill., July 29 (AP).—Etta Druien, a bay mare by Etawah, driven by Tommy Murphy, established a new world's record in the first race of the opening day's program of the Grand Circuit meeting here, stepping six furlongs in 1:20 1-5.

The former record, 1:21 1-5, was made at North Randall, Cleveland, July 4 of this year, by Lady Alethaire. The mare was given a pretty drive by Murphy, who took her out in front at the start and kept her there.

Ribbon Cane, a bay mare by Peter Hoff, owned by Edward Peterson of Omaha, won three of the eight races on the first day's card. He was under the wire first in the three events for 2:10 pacers, which was raced in dashes of seven furlongs, six furlongs and a mile.

The feature of the day, the Fox Valley stake for 2:13 trotters, purse $1200, at a mile and an eighth, was won by Crawford, a bay gelding by Belwin, driven by Tommy Murphy.

CUYLER FIRST MAJOR TO MAKE 100 RUNS

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 29 (A. P.).—Hazen "Kiki" Cuyler, Pirate left fielder, today has the distinction of being the first player in the major leagues to score 100 runs this season. He passed the century mark in the Pirate-Braves game yesterday, tallying once in the fifth and again in the seventh inning. Cuyler came to the major league from Nashville last year.

RUPPERT TO BUILD UP A NEW TEAM

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

New York, July 29.—Having ridden the crest for four years and now in the grip of the undertow, the New York Yanks today faced the alternative of getting a new manager or a ball club.

Davis J. Walsh

It quite probably will be the latter since Jake Ruppert, the well known check writer, has declared with convincing heat that he is perfectly satisfied with Miller Huggins as a team leader.

Huggins, therefore, will stay and the prima donnas go. They are all together irreconcilable and another season without a change of some kind would wreck what is left of a once proud ball club.

The writer is not prepared to say that this is Huggins' fault. He was good enough to lead the club to a pennant for three seasons and to second money last year. But the young men have not taken kindly to a second division berth, and, of course, are altogether blameless themselves.

Backstairs gossip from those close to the management and players had the Yankees indulging in mutual recriminations, and, in some cases, showing actual disrespect for their manager.

Ruppert has had direct evidence this season of what the situation can and does produce. Huggins, of course, allowed the club to grow old on his hands, yet the Yanks are no seventh place outfit, bad as they are.

They simply have their head down and are merely finishing out their string. To listen to some fans you would think the string should be a rope with a noose on one end and the limb of a tree on the other.

The identity of those to be guillotined can only be surmised. However, the club has plenty of good trading material in Jones and Hoyt, pitchers; Ward, second baseman, and Meusel, outfielder, and something is certain to be done about it before 1926. Ruth, of course, is immune for more than one reason.

For one thing, no club would care to assume his big contract in the present stage of his rather precarious health. For another, Ruth is a New York institution and will so remain until proven otherwise. It also may be assumed that Dugan and Combs are quite simply because you can't reconstruct the Woolworth building with a shoe box for a cornerstone.

MURPHY AND ONE-LEGGED GOLFER IN SEMI-FINALS

Portsmouth, N. H., July 29.—Eddie Murphy, sixteen-year-old Charles River boy, who carried Francis Ouimet to the nineteenth hole last week in the Massachusetts Golf tournament, and Hiram Hicker, Jr., of Poland Spring, ex-Maine champion; Jes Norton of Woodland and Allie Cole of Overbrook Club, Philadelphia, came through to the semi-finals in the first annual invitation tournament at the Wentworth course.

McQuillen, who lost a leg in the World War, contributed the feature match of the day, defeating H. C. Richard of the Baltusrol Club, New York, 1 up in the second round play. Murphy played steady golf throughout the day, making the course in 75.

The semi-finals this morning will bring Hicker and Norton together, while Murphy will oppose McQuillen.

CHAPMAN-MARKEY TEAM WINS AT PROVIDENCE

Providence, July 29. — George Chapman, paced by Vincent Markey of Pasaiac, N. J., ran away with the forty-mile motorcycle team event at the Cyclodrome, out-classing Charles Verkeyn of Belgium, teamed with Pischone of Thornton, and Frank Keenan of Revere, paced with Sam Gastman of Newark.

It was Elks' Night and a silver cup from Pawtucket Lodge was the trophy. Chapman and Markey won in 51m. 12s. Keenan and Gastman were second.

United States Senator Jesse H. Metcalf started the motor pace event.

INTERNATIONAL YACHT RACES START MONDAY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM.

Marblehead is preparing for the coming international yacht races which will start next Monday afternoon when the R class competes. Close watch will be made on the German built sloops in this class. The other eight boats, three in number, have already reached here.

Geo. Grimm.

A great deal of interest in the races is being manifested by the yachting folk along the Bay State coast. A score or more yachts, products of the best known constructors and designers of watercraft, are entered.

Edsel Ford is expected in Marblehead Harbor today with his boat, the Nordic. Whether he will enter it in the coming meeting is not definitely known.

The power and sailing craft of the Cruising Club of America, which set out from Larchmont, N. Y., for Gloucester, Sunday had a rough trip, according to reports of the crew of the Avis, which was the first boat of the three in the power division to arrive at its destination.

The Avis crossed the line about 8 o'clock and reported the Old Glory about 15 miles astern. As the Avis allowed the latter about an hour, it is believed that the Avis may be the winner. The third boat dropped by the wayside in Buzzards Bay.

The two boats to finish left the Sandwich end of the Canal about 11:20 in the morning and had a fairly clear run across the bay.

The Avis crew reported that the sailing craft got in trouble coming up the Sound. A head wind and tide, heavy sea and fog were responsible for the stranding of three of the fleet, the Azor II being ashore so hard that she could not be gotten off. The other two boats got off. They are not expected here until tomorrow.

SOX STRIVE TO FIND VICTORY TRAIL

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Red Sox try again this afternoon. They have tossed off the strange feeling of coming home. They could hardly be expected to show much on the opening day. The sins of the road trip weighed heavily. The Folks were beaten badly, got the initial jolt out of their systems, and will now try to play some large league baseball.

Tris Speaker's Indians are on a hitting spree the past few weeks, and carried their wild assault into Fenway Park. It was a shame, what they did to a flock of Sox pitchers. The natives pounded Sherrod Smith viciously enough, but it didn't mean a thing. The hostiles were so far in front that the venerable southpaw just eased along.

There are two players with the Sox, Catcher Bischoff and Shortstop Rothrock, who will get a quick chance to show the local populace what they can do. Bischoff has had a little experience with the Browns, whence he came on the waiver plan. He's a fast worker for a catcher, and the Sox, who were in the Texas League with him, all say he will be very good shortly.

Rothrock came from the West, and is having his first crack at the big game. He was tossed in for an inning, and handled the only chance that came his way in nifty fashion. Several clubs were after him, as he is supposed to be a hitter as well as an exceptionally fast young man in the field. He can scamper some, as he showed in one dash toward first.

Gautreau Makes Hit in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, July 29.—Pirate fans are raving about the way "Doc" Gautreau covers the vast expanse of ground around second base. He is the most agile kid seen in an enemy uniform on Forbes Field this season.

Connie Mack certainly passed up a prospect when he dropped him to make room for the Red Sox Jack Quinn.

Genevich or Cooney will oppose Emil Yde in the third contest. Yde dissipated a big lead with the Braves upon his last appearance against Rancroft's men and had to be yanked to save the game.

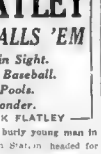
FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

Football in Sight. Money in Baseball. Baseball Pools. A Girl Wonder.

— By NICK FLATLEY —

NOTICED a burly young man in the South Station headed for the country. He had tennis rackets, golf clubs, the ukulele and other athletic implements. And there was a football rule book sticking out of his pocket.



Nick Flatley

The rumblings of the gridiron season are just around the corner. In these days of efficiency, the boys practice plenty during the Summer. They kick footballs around pastures, try to master the drop and do a lot of other little things. Charlie Daly, who is to help out at Harvard, has reported in Boston. Harvard has just about reached the spot where victory must be the result, or a lot of heads will go tumbling into the waste basket. Before you know it, the air will be full of whistles and so-called pigskins.

STERN parents no longer frown when their athletic sons turn to baseball as a means of livelihood. There's too much money in it. Eddie Farrell joined the New York Giants the day after he was graduated from Penn. He gets a salary some three times as big as the average college man can hope for his first year out, or his second or third, for the matter of that. He also is in line for a full share of the world series, provided the Giants win the pennant. That little extra bit would amount to something like $4,000. Any pastime that can offer ambitious youth something like $10,000 per for a starter, earns a high spot in the list of professions.

OUR friend, Jack the barber, plays baseball poo.. He had been doing it for years. There aren't supposed to be such things, but unhappily in this case, there are. Jack had been paying in his dollar regularly and never winning a prize. His particular poo was the team a day kind with your own ticket. The weekly run total decided winners.

Last week Jack made out his list. He wrapped it around his dollar, ready to hand to the collector. The capital prize, incidentally, was $2,000. Jack went out to lunch, and the collector did his collecting. The ticket reposed in Jack's pocket and the list won—had every high score every day all week. Jack, at present, is undecided as to just what form of suicide he will employ. He's sure he will try one of them. Meantime, he is "offa" pools.

THE pool is one of the most insidious forms of gambling, like the parlay at the race track. The ticket buyer has about one chance in a million, provided always the thing is run on the level, which always it is not. Our friend Jack, for instance, invests some $25 a year in his baseball pool. He has been doing it for ten years.

That money saved might have done many things for him. It would have hired a Summer cottage for his family for a season. It would have bought a flivver for the family. As things stand, it has caused merely regrets.

FEMININE endurance frequently causes mere man to wonder. We do not refer to conversation nor memory of unpleasant incidents. Miss Mary Browne, one of our tennis champions, recently stepped on the courts at Essex at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. She played steadily until 6:45. In three and three fourths hours she won six different matches. She played 107 games. It was a hot afternoon, it might be mentioned. Tennis isn't any powder and puff pastime. It is, or so, just try it. If you have passed the age of thirty, and have softened up some, DON'T try it.

Three Big Races on Endicott Card

By GUS DALY.

Endicott, N. Y., July 29.—There are three good stakes carded for this afternoon here, with the $5,000 stake 2:08 trot the feature. The Great Volo Clyde the Great, Oscawana, Bill Sharon and the Boston champion, Dammodor Wilson, will come to the wire among others in the event.

Bee Worthy has nothing much to beat in the 2:18 stake, $2,000 trot, as Ensign Tige has declined the issue. The 2:10 $2,000 pace has eight speedy engines set and ready. Jodie H. looks a trifle out front, but Walter M., Johnny Quirk, Hilda Hal and Peter Elzevah will make the Springfield, Mass., mare hustle all the way.

Yesterday's program was held up on account of poor track conditions, brought about by the heavy fall of rain just previous to post time. It was a great disappointment to the immense crowd of racing folk that had gathered at the handsome Endicott-Johnson race course.

FINISHES TRAINING TODAY

Solomon Arrives and Declares He Is in Fine Shape for Friday Night's Melee

By RINGSIDE.

JACK SHARKEY will finish active training for King Solomon today, and rest up thereafter until he hops into the ring at Braves Field Friday night. The New England champ is right in the pink, as they say. He has put in three steady and serious weeks of conditioning, and is all set for one of those battles of the century.

Sharkey, who has brains as well as a couple of good hands, did most of his work in the great outdoors. Fighting in the open is a much different proposition than boxing in smoke filled halls. Out where the "woo" begins, the battlers don't have to conserve wind. They don't have to worry about strangling to death.

That's why the best boys can train in at the opening bell and keep going right along to the finish. Strength is the prime requisite of condition. The boy who develops enough wind to run ten or twelve miles a day, has sufficient bellows power to go through any kind of a bout.

Mr. Sharkey has been running around the hills of Nantasket. He has been basking in the sunshine. He came up to Boston daily to box and spar, but didn't linger around the city any longer than he had to. Jack realizes that victory means a whole lot in this particular mill, in the matter of future, as well as of money.

There's a bout with Maloney ahead for him if he licks the King. There's all kinds of glittering prospects after that. If Sharkey beats Maloney, he can come mighty close to stepping out with Gene Tunney.

Those who have followed the Roxbury walloper give him a very good chance with Tunney. Sharkey's cleverness can hold off almost any fighter of the rushing type. Being hoisted into the same class with Gene would make Jack a real contender and how.

THE scion of royalty, the Kink, arrived in Boston last night. He is in trim, too. He's the kind of a bird that serves it. He will do some boxing at Mike Fitzgerald's today and tomorrow. Mister Solomon is super anxious to win this particular battle. He wants another crack at Maloney, and knows that he will have to beat Sharkey to get that.

The King figures this will be a harder battle than the next Maloney row. He knows Jim's game, while Jack is a bit of a mystery to him. Solomon hasn't bumped up against anybody just as clever as himself yet, but has been reliably informed that the unprecedented will happen Friday night.

Solomon showed so much in his Maloney fight that some of the boys are inclined to make him a favorite for the approaching conflict. Sharkey, being a native, will probably go into the ring with a slight edge in popular and financial opinion. But it will be slight.

AL MELLO of Lowell is loudly pacing a bout with Georgie Lee, the Worcester lightweight champ. Georgie recently declared that he was ready to step into the welterweight class, and wanted a crack at Eddie Shevlin.

But Al thinks Georgie should begin with him, not at the top of the heap. Al claims that, after that, Georgie will decide to remain a lightweight permanently. Both boys appear Friday night, but in different bouts. Lee boxes Tony Jullan, while Mello mixes up with Frankie Quill. Both jams promise action.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 61 Golf Champions, "Golf's Most Successful Teacher," Says Chick Evans.

The reason you delay the wrist action in the back swing is because you want it to be delayed in the forward swing—and you cannot think about such things while making the swing. The forward swing be ing a reverse of the back swing it is obvious that the wrists breaking late in the back swing will also break late in the forward swing. In other words, the wrist action is the last thing to take place in the back swing and, in the reverse or forward swing, the wrists break last, as the clubhead nears the ball, and add their powerful snap of the clubhead into the ball. However, the clubhead must be in motion before this takes place—hence the delayed wrist action in the back swing. If you break the wrists quickly in the back swing, they will break quickly at the start of the forward swing and their power thus be spent while the clubhead is far away from the ball.

How Ball Players Lure Luck for Bats

Ike Boone in Red Sox dugout at Fenway Park polishing up a new bat, with "Snowball" an interested spectator.

Baseball players are much more superstitious than gun worshippers or golf victims or girls in love or anything. They admire loads of empty barrels, and four leaf clovers and rabbit's feet. They hate black cats in the dark of the moon, and a that. And their superstitions come to a head in the matter of bats.

Any ball player would rather lose an arm or a leg or the sight of an eye than a bat he considers lucky. If the diamond athlete took as much care of his pennies as he does of his bats he couldn't help being a millionaire. Fortune and friends may be had, but the real ball player has a favorite Major Slugger he would die with good war clubs.

Some of the players carry their favorite hickories in specially made cases. They don't let a porter in the baggage car and the ball bag. The sticks have daily application of oil. They are polished and rubbed. Pet bottles are the standard polisher. The hard glass surface rubs down any splinters or unevenness that may mar the surface.

The topic bottle idea probably originated when some starter of the long ago banged out a few extra hits after the initial experiment. Customs persist for years in baseball, for no rhyme nor reason. One player starts hitting, and every other player wants a model of his bat.

The factory at Louisville received seventy-six league orders for Hank Gowdy bats within a month of Henry's famous hitting spree in the 1914 World Series. The Babe Ruth model was in universal demand the year the Bambino was making his home run record. Made no difference that most of the boys couldn't get it off the shoulder to hit a fast ball. They all had a try.

Ike Boone, Red Sox slugger, is like all the rest of them. He uses a very hefty club, and watches over it with great care. He has Jimmy Jones—"Snowball"—the tiny mascot of the Sox, as assistant caretaker. Little Jimmy is supposed to be lucky, too. That's why the Sox have him around. Jimmy and Ike look over the bats carefully before every ball game. They put the lucky touch on them. That's why Ike is hitting home runs and things. No doubt of that.

Little Jimmy was adopted by the Sox, who found him hanging around the park afternoons. His parents run the traveling hot dog and tonic stand that parks outside the gates and catches the hungry and thirsty fan going and coming.

He was an obliging and amusing kid, so the boys wrapped him in a uniform. His luck hasn't started to work as yet, but Jimmy and the Sox are all sure that it will. And all the Sox friends hope so.

Dilboy vs. Malden at Tufts Oval

By JOE CASHMAN.

The present rainy spell is hitting the Boston Twilight League a hard blow. If it continues much longer the clubs will have to give up the idea of paying thirty-six games each during the second half race.

The obliteration of South Boston's state when that franchise was transferred to Lowell last week set a few other clubs back one or more games, and this week to date but four of the nine carded games have taken place. In order to complete the schedule as originally drawn up all nines will have to experience favorable weather almost every evening for the remainder of the season.

If Old Jupe Pluvius will but absent himself from this neck of the woods between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock this evening eight of the after supper nines will "do their stuff."

Malden and Dilboy will clash at Tufts Oval, Somerville, in the only local tilt listed. The other games will find Nashua battling the Cornets at Lynn, Salem taking on Lowell at the Witch City, and Lawrence and Manchester having it out in the Granite State.

Local fans are beginning to realize that the "Twi" League, once composed of clubs all within a short radius of the Hub, is now a Greater Boston circuit in name only. There was a time when the native enthusiasts had a choice of three or four contests to attend. Now he is lucky if there is one near enough at hand to take in.

Tonight, for instance, Mister Local Fan must either travel out to Tufts Oval or stay at home.

If he decides on the latter course he will probably regret it. Dilboy and Malden are ancient rivals and very evenly matched. Each believes it is going somewhere in the race and the clash should prove a succession of thrills.

• • •

Bill Kelly and Jim Lynch, who aided the late Jim Newton in managing the South Boston club, are still in the field although the Pawtucket league franchise has gone to Lowell. Tonight they will put a team on against the Boston Royal Giants at the C. J. Lee park. They hope to receive permission to book league attractions in the future.

"Twi" Notes

Nashua regained the lead in the second half race last evening by stamping Dilboy, 13 to 2, at the Gate City. It becomes more and more apparent every day that the "Millionaires" are out to win the last half flag despite the fact that they walked off with first half honors.

• • •

Abbot and the Cornets played a full game in 93 minutes at Granitville, last evening, the former winning 2 to 1. It was the fastest game ever played on the park and perhaps the most rapid in the history of the league. The winners scored both tallies in the first inning and the Cornets hung up their lone counter in the second. Poli was on the mound for Abbot and Jeff Tesreau was on the hill for the Cornets. Both were in good form, allowing but six hits each.

• • •

Salem outhit Manchester 12 to 8 but lost 3 to 2 at the Witch City. Warren Cote, former North Cambridge star, was the outstanding figure in the game, making three safeties and pulling off a series of spectacular fielding stunts.

CHECK KEEPS IN TRIM AT SUMMER CAMP

Marion Check, captain-elect of the 1926 Harvard football team, is in perfect physical condition at Camp Monadnock, Jaffrey, New Hampshire. Last season Check excelled at the signal calling berth and his line plunging was the outstanding feature in many of the games. The Crimson athlete has charge of a boys' camp and he spends most of his spare time doing conditioning exercises.

Moe and Joe Dope for Today

Tab another winner to Moe's credit. The old boy jammed his jack on Blind Play and it was anything but that, for the mackerel just rolled home. He will try to keep the streak going with one this afternoon that is said to be real hot one, 'Flames' in the second. Bill Ryan hopes to get harmless strikes on this bird. The leather $2,028.24.

'Governor's Night' at Revere Track

"Governor's Night" will be observed at the Revere cycle track tonight and Governor Alvan T. Fuller will attend and act as honorary referee of the racing.

It is the greatest mid-week program ever arranged for the beach, and one that should attract a record Wednesday attendance.

Bobby Walthour, son of the former "Dixie Whirlwind," and the most popular youngster to ever jump a mark on Revere Beach, will receive the severest test of his sensational career when he goes up against Peter Moscappa, world's champion. It is a five heat race, [illegible]

BEDTIME STORY

WHY HE IS CALLED AN ADJUTANT

WE had just arrived in Calcutta and while we were collecting our luggage Bobby as usual was busy helping me. This evidently afforded amusement to a soldier who was nearby. I saw him smile. I smiled back. Then he said:

"Your little friend is quite a helper."

"My adjutant," I laughed, seeing the man was a soldier.

We gathered everything together, took a carriage and started for the hotel.

As we drove along Bobby's eyes grew twice their size as he gazed in wonder at that busy city of India.

Suddenly his eyes grew enormous. I looked to see what had caused this, and followed his gaze. Up to the roof of a government building which we were passing Bobby's eyes were riveted.

And it didn't take my eyes long to see what interested the boy so keenly. For there, standing up on their long legs, were many peculiar birds—great big fellows, too, which reminded us of the storks which we had seen on the housetops in Holland.

"Storks?" asked Bobby.

"Look like the storks we saw in Holland, certainly," I answered, "but these are such untidy-looking birds."

We drove on and from that moment Bobby's little back was craned to see any of the strange birds which might be roosting on the housetops.

We got to the hotel, had our lunch and then set out to see the city. We walked. That is really the only way to see a place and we were particularly glad that we were on foot that afternoon and I will tell you why.

We got quite a way from the hotel and before we knew it we were in the poorer part of Calcutta—and what hordes of people there were all living huddled together, worse than any tenement district you ever saw in our country.

How dirty everything was! Yet I was bound to notice that the streets were not so bad.

"Must has a good street-cleaning department here," I declared.

"Doesn't cost the government much, either," said Bunny.

Now why didn't it cost the government much and how did that little rabbit know anything about such conditions? But that question was soon answered.

Just then Bobby clutched my hand and pulled around a corner which we were just about to turn.

"There's one of those birds, Foxy Grandpa!" he shouted.

Sure enough there was one of those moth-eaten-looking relatives of the stork which we had seen perching on the housetops. He was walking along with a measured gait and with his chin held in like a West Point cadet. We all burst out laughing.

No one seemed to pay much attention to him, and he didn't pay any attention to anyone. He went calmly about his business—and it was business, as I afterward discovered—picking up scraps of refuse in the street. After each mouthful he proudly strutted on to the next.

"Very busy," I chuckled

"Sure," said Bunny. "That's his business. They're protected by law to clean up the streets. Government saves that way."

"Oh," I said, "I see. Walks like a soldier, doesn't he?"

"That's why they call him the adjutant," said Bunny.

"You called me one this morning," put in Bobby.

"That's right," I laughed, "because you were carrying out my orders like a commanding officer's assistant.

SUMMER VEGETABLES AND HOW TO COOK THEM.

It is not only the diet squad that is interested in vegetable cookery these days. Both fat and thin appreciate vegetables as among the most appetising and refreshing of our Summer foods, to say nothing of being the most economical.

So today I am going to talk about how to prepare those welcome Summer visitors in new and, I think attractive ways.

First of all I want to tell you about a combination of beets and carrots. This is called vegetable peonies:

RECIPE NO. 1441

VEGETABLE PEONIES.

You will need six medium sized beets, all about the same size. Cook them until they are tender and then slip off the skins. Hollow them out to form cups and with a sharp knife cut out Vs so as to leave the rest in petals.

Brush the hollowed out beets with 3 tbsps. of melted butter to which you have added ½ tsp. salt, 1 tbsp. of vinegar and 1 tsp. of sugar. Then fill the cups with buttered and highly seasoned cooked diced carrots.

Place in a moderately hot oven until they are heated all the way through and serve right away.

I don't believe you ever heard of preparing beets with tart oranges, but if you will try the next recipe, I am quite sure you will agree with me that the flavor is most unusual and delicious. The recipe is called

RECIPE NO. 1442

BEETS WITH ORANGE DRESSING.

2 bunches new beets.
1 tbsp. sugar.
2 sour oranges.
1 small lemon.

Boil the beets in salted water and slice them thin. Sprinkle with the sugar and then they are cool, add the orange and lemon juice.

Now that corn is with us there are an endless number of delicious dishes that can be made from it. For instance:

RECIPE NO. 1443

STEWED CORN AND PEPPERS.

Cut the kernels from 12 ears sweet corn and scrape the cobs so as to get out the milk. Scald 2 green peppers in boiling water to which you have added ¼ tsp. of soda. Put 1 tbsp. of fat in a hot spider and add the corn and the chopped peppers. Pour in 1 cupful of milk, 1 level tbsp. of salt and ¼ tsp. of pepper. Cook slowly until done and slightly brown. If there does not seem to be enough liquid, add a little more milk or water. Boil ¾ of a cupful of rice in salted water until tender and then drain in a colander and either mix it with the corn and peppers or serve it separately.

And here is something nice to serve in your ramekins or custard cups.

RECIPE NO. 1444

STEAMED CORN AND LIMA BEANS.

1 cupful of sweet corn put through your food chopper.
1 cupful of fresh lima beans also ground.
2 eggs.
1 tsp. salt.
1 pint milk
2 tbsp. melted butter
1 tsp. of sugar
⅛ tsp. of pepper.

Mix these ingredients in the order I have given them and pour the mixture into well buttered custard cups or ramekins, and set them in a pan of water in a moderate oven and steam until they are firm in the centre, about 25 minutes.

Cucumbers are at their best right now and they are very appetizing prepared as follows:

RECIPE NO. 1445

PEQUANTE CUCUMBERS.

Pare 2 large but not over ripe cucumbers and slice them into pieces about ¼ inch thick. Sprinkle the slices with salt and pepper and dip them in beaten egg which has been diluted with 2 tbsps. of cold water to each egg. Then roll the cucumber slices in fine bread crumbs and fry them in deep fat until tender and a rich brown.

Make 1 cupful of thick tomato sauce, as I have directed so many times, and season this with 1 tbsp. of lemon juice, salted to taste, ¼ tsp. of prepared mustard and 1 tsp. of grated onion. Pour this over the fried cucumber slices just before serving them.

And for the last recipe today something I know you are going to like, a combination of

RECIPE NO. 1446

TOMATOES AND STRING BEANS.

Cut 1 quart of string beans rather fine and boil them for ½ an hour in salted water. Make cups from 6 tomatoes by cutting off the tops and removing the seedy part, which would make an excellent sauce or can be used in soup.

Season the beans with 1 tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. of butter, 1 chopped sweet pepper and dash of nutmeg. Fill the tomato cups with the seasoned beans and bake for ½ hour in a moderately hot oven.

Creamed lima beans or creamed corn may be used instead of string beans.

LESSON NO. 23

THE THREE-TUBE SET

Probably the most economical radio set for good loudspeaker reproduction on the distant stations is the three-tube regenerative set. This is very simple to build and is remarkably efficient. The tube arrangement for such a set is always a detector and two stages of audio-frequency amplification. Most generally the set is equipped with telephone jacks so that if desired, the operator may plug into the output of either the first, second or third tube. A three-tube set may be operated from dry cells or a storage battery. Dry cell tubes will give sufficient volume for an ordinary sized room, whereas with the heavier storage battery tubes we obtain more volume and better tone. The average three-tube set uses either 67½ or 90 volts of "B" battery. When 90 volts of "B" battery are used it is a big advantage to use a "C" battery in connection with the audio amplifier.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggist or store.

ARE YOU A GOOD LOSER, OR DO YOU BEMOAN ILL-LUCK?

You have had a severe loss and you cannot think of the matter without a sinking heart.

Just remember that all loss is relative.

Nothing is absolutely lost.

It may be a friend who has gone before but you have a beautiful memory—and inspiration to nobler deeds and if you are a Christian you have hope in your heart.

It may be the loss of material things but you can work out some scheme to retrieve your losses.

It may be a friend whom you thought true and who failed you.

It is how you take loss and discouragement which counts. Brace up.

Fort Worth, Texas.—"Have you seen the helium plant?"

That is among the first questions you are asked.

The government has just announced its big, novel plant here established a new record in the extraction of helium gas last month, 7,228,000 cub ic feet, for use of the naval airships, Los Angeles and Shenandoah. Citizens tell you that in two years the cost of production has been reduced from $65 to less than $25 per thousand cubic feet. The plant, and the pipe line serving it, represent an investment of $6,000,000.

One-thirty-fifth of America's total rail traffic is consigned from, to, or through Fort Worth.

Fort Worth's utility company, the Northern Texas Traction Company, last year won the highest honor in the land, the Charles A. Coffin medal, awarded annually to the company making the most distinguished contribution to the development of electric transportation.

Twelve trunk line railroads, with nineteen outlets serve this city.

The Armour, Swift, Fort Worth Packing and Texas Dressed Beef plants make Fort Worth the largest livestock market in the South.

It is also the largest terminal grain market in the South, with storage capacity approximating 10,000,000 bushels.

• • •

Only two other cities in the United States have as low a death rate as Fort Worth.

Since the 1920 census, Fort Worth has gained 41,625 in population, giving it 155,000.

It would open the eyes of many Americans could they visit such a city as this and see how the citizens enjoy life and see, also, how many business, industrial and agricultural opportunities are available here, opportunities such as have enabled many, many families to attain a comfortable competency and not a few great wealth.

SHOE BUSINESS LIKELY TO BE BETTER

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Sales Manager E. M. Blake of the Philip Clard Shoe Company, Bridgewater, tells me:

"Our opinion of the present and the rest of the year may first be summed up by saying—BUSINESS IS BETTER THAN IT IS.

"There is much substance, soundness and confidence underneath the fabric of industry of the country and it seems that people mainly are wondering why it does not seep through and spread more rapidly.

"The whole thing seems to be working out in cycles of moderation, each in its way tending toward a more normal condition, generally.

"There has been some improvement in the shoe business and we look for more to show during the rest of the present year; however, it is only fair to assume that during a period when 98 shoes are considered by the average person as luxurious and a $1,000 automobile as cheap, it is not the time to look for extravagant advances," Mr. Blake adds.

"This seems to us mainly a stabilizing period, during which, all factors, both in merchandising and in production are finding their common mutual level, upon which things can run and develop in harmony and pace with the wonderfully fine basic condition of the country," declares Mr. Blake.

• • •

Macfie Firearms Co., New Haven, says:

Business for the first four months in our line was exceptionally good but May and June have tapered down. This, of course, is due to the seasonable buying of our jobbers.

Stocks of goods on hand are normal. The labor and wage situation affecting our particular industry is also normal. We find now that our customers are buying rather conservatively.

We do not believe that the tendency of prices will be upward, rather we look for a stabilized price or prices in our particular line and of the raw material that we buy for the balance of the year.

DILLON, READ OFFERING IS REPORTED WITHHELD

Dillon, Read & Co., who recently purchased large holding in Deutsche Luxemburgische Co., a Silesian property, will not offer any of the securities to public at present, it is stated. Purchase said to have involved between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000.

CAR LOADINGS GO OVER MILLION FIRST TIME

Loading of revenue freight for week ended July 18 reached 1,010,878 cars. This was the first time this year the million mark has been reached, increases over the week before having been reported in all commodities except livestock, coke and ore.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE'S BONDHOLDERS WARNED

American Telephone & Telegraph Co., states chat as of July 27, holders of $1,586,000 convertible 4½ 1929 have not yet accepted the conversion privileges accompanying these bonds, in spite of repeated efforts to call it to their attention. Bonds not exercised into stock on or before maturity, August 1, will be paid off at face value. On or before that date, one share of stock may be had for $100 in bonds, plus $6. No special advantage accrues to bondholders in waiting until August 1, before converting and appropriate interest and dividend adjustments are made by the company.

The ConvertiBle 6s are currently quoted around 124, and the stock around 134. Any bondholder, therefore, who fails to exercise his conversion privileges or sell his bond on or before August 1, will suffer a loss of approximately $240 per $1,000 bond.

QUOTATIONS ARE LOWER ON FUTURES IN COTTON

SCHIRMER, ATHERTON CALL B. & M. A BUY

Shirmer, Atherton & Co. have prepared a study on the Boston and Maine Railroad in which they summarize their conclusions as follows: "Notwithstanding the vast improvement that has taken place in Boston and Maine Railroad, its various stock issues are selling in the market only slightly above the average prices of the past three and one-half years. In other words, in every year during this time the stocks has commanded materially higher prices, yet at no time has the outlook for the company showed more promise than at present. At present market prices the various Boston and Maine stocks offer attractive possibilities for substantial appreciation for one year, in view of developments, and prepared to forego immediate return on capital."

EARNINGS OF STEEL BETTER THAN HOPED

To advance of 1% points in United States Steel common was generally attributed to be in anticipation of a satisfactory report for the June quarter, but the official figures made public after the market's close showed earnings even better than expected. The general impression was that net after taxes would not exceed that of the first quarter, which amounted to $39,82,992, in view of the lower prices that prevailed in the latter period. Yet, despite this handicap, net for the June quarter was $40,634,221. However, this, compared with $41,381,039 in the second quarter of 1924. In this connection it is interesting to note that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation failed in the June quarter to equal the earning aof the first three months, but exceeded those of the second quarter of 1924. With the outlook for better business and higher prices in the final six months of the year, there is every reason to believe at this time that the Steel Corporation will do better than in the first half, when the surplus available per common dividends was equal to $5.99 a share.

GOLD MOVEMENT TOWARD CANADA IS PREDICTED

If the rates of Canadian exchange continue their present upward tendency bankers look for a movement of gold before longaway from this market and toward the northern Dominion. Yesterday Canadian dollars sold.at a premium as high as 6-32 of 1 per cent., up 1-16 to a new high for the year, which compared with a premium of 1-32 a week ago. According to the computation of exchange experts here, the cost of shipping gold to Canada places the gold shipment point at around 11-64 of 1 per cent. Thus, should the premium rise 1-64 more, gold should begin to move. The market for Canadian exchange is only moderately active, so that unusually heavy orders might cause a substantial move in either direction, but the trend is distinctly toward higher levels. The country, in the first place, has a favorable trade balance, which should be accentuated with the approach of the crop season, and the mid-year pressure on exchange has been removed through the payment of the country's large interest and dividend payment around July 1.

DIVIDEND RAISE FOR "KATY" IS EXPECTED

Unless there should be a decided change for the worse in the earning situation on the Missouri-Kansas-Texas in the next month or two an increase in the dividend rate on the preferred A stock is believed to be practically a certainty. This rate will probably be increased from $5 to $7 per share in October or in December. The only difference of opinion among the members of the board, it is understood, centres around the question of whether the increase should become effective at the September or the December meeting. Some members of the board feel that the earnings and cash position of the company justify an immediate advance in the rate, while others prefer to wait a little longer before they will be able to scan the results of an entire year's operation on the increased rate. Should the board act on a dividend basis December 15, 1924. The stock becomes commulative at 47 annually in 1923.

SAVINGS DEPOSITS IN BOSTON ARE LARGER

Savings deposits reported by 932 banks throughout the country totalled 7, 977,117,000 on July 1, compared with 7,853,734,000 on June 1 and $7,450,005,000 on July 1, 1924, small increases occurred in all the federal reserve districts except Philadelphia, the greatest advance being in the Atlanta district.

In the Boston district ther was an increase from $1,256,624,000 to $1,322,349,000.

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 29, 1925

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

With a little over 2% of the territory of the United States, New England is producing more than 11% of the manufactured products of the nation! Value, more than $7,000,000,000 annually.

New England's growth in population, 1920 compared with 1910, 13⅓; United States as a whole, 14.7%. Three Southern New England States, 16.2%, or greater than the average for the country!

A Call to the Minute Men of Six States to Join the 'New England Get-Together Club'

MEETING TOMORROW IN BOSTON, six stand-out New Englanders, each the selection of the Governor of his home State for this particular mission, will take the second step towards the organization of a New England Get-Together Club.

In parts of the South, the Middle West and the Far West these gentlemen would be called "boosters" and the proposed organization a "boosters' club." Its official name here is the "New England Co-operative Council."

But names do not matter so much as plans and purposes, and the aim of these pioneers, in a movement which cannot fail to be of great benefit to this part of the country, is to bring all New England together for all New England's good.

There is not a pessimist, a crepe-hanger or a dirge-singer in the group, no more than there was among the larger assembly of eighteen which met last week at the State House and delegated this smaller body to the task of drawing up constitution and by-laws.

Not one among them believes that New England is or has been "slipping"—on the other hand, every man among them is determined that New England SHALL NOT "slip."

Working for Six States

Who ARE the delegates who tomorrow will lay the foundations of the New England Co-operative Council? What have they done? What is their background?

GUY P. GANNETT, named by Governor Brewster of Maine, is the owner and publisher of two or three powerful daily newspapers in the Pine Tree State; head of the publishing house of W. H. Gannett, Inc., at Augusta, and a public-spirited citizen active in every good work.

ALBERT E. WORCESTER, of Manchester, named by Governor Winant, is general manager of the Bachelder-Worcester box manufacturing organization and one of the foremost of the younger business men of New Hampshire.

FRED ARTHUR HOWLAND, serving at the request of Governor Billings, is president of the National Life Insurance Company, an institution quite as well known in Boston and throughout New England as it is in the neighborhood of the Capitol at Montpelier.

JOHN S. LAWRENCE, one of three Massachusetts men who took part in last week's conference by invitation of Governor Fuller, is the well-known merchant and manufacturer, head of the famous house of Lawrence & Co. It was Mr. Lawrence who last year originated the idea of "New England Week." Out of that success came the project for this permanent organization.

HENRY D. SHARPE, representing Rhode Island tomorrow, is treasurer of the Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Company, makers of fine machinery and measuring instruments, whose great plant at Providence employs in busy times about 7,000 operatives and sends its products to all parts of the civilized world. When Governor Pothier was asked to send delegates to the first New England Economic Conference, his first thought was of Mr. Sharpe.

A "Spurt of Retail Buying"

GEORGE B. CHANDLER, of Hartford, for many years a specialist on social and industrial problems, takes a leading part in the New England Get-Together movement at the earnest request of Governor Trumbull. Mr. Chandler is the efficient executive secretary of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce.

Fifty years ago a similar gathering of influential New Englanders would have contained two or three leaders of industry of the type described as "self-made." It is mentioned merely as one of the signs of a new day that the conferrees who are to meet tomorrow are college men. Bowdoin, Dartmouth, Harvard, Brown, Yale, the "All New England" note is represented by their colleges as well as by the delegates, even though the State of Maine man went to Yale and the Connecticut man to Bowdoin.

They come together at a propitious time, when according to the experts the worst in an industrial sense may be looked upon as over and commerce and industry are headed into the latter half of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-Five with every prospect that these six months will be busy and prosperous.

Notwithstanding much grumbling and growling, the figures show that the first half of the year was by no means a bad one.

"Last year," one trained observer reminds us, "the first six months came to an end with a great amount of depression on all hands. This year they ended in a spurt of retail buying.

"The hottest June in 80 years brought about an improvement of 4.6 per cent. in the combined sales of 522 retail stores throughout the country, as compared with those of June, 1924.

Where New England Is "First"

In the shoe centres, business is considerably improved, thanks in some measure at least to the pluck and enthusiasm manifested by manufacturers at the recent exposition.

The point of most interest in the New England industrial situation today is furnished by textiles. The wage reduction of 10 per cent., which went generally into effect on Monday, was coincident with reductions in worsted fabrics for next Spring's delivery, ranging from 2 to 10 per cent. below the quotations for last Spring.

"In cotton goods the market once more has been greatly disturbed by a government crop report. The estimate this time was pared down 500,000 bales from the trade's idea to 13,588,000 bales. This forecast immediately 'firmed up' cloth values, but disappoints both buyers and sellers in their hope that cheaper cotton and larger consumption of goods are on the way."

It is well to know the truth about the situation, but it is also helpful to study BOTH sides of the picture.

If it be true, as it appears to be true, that of our three major industries one is showing signs of improvement, another is finding its legs again, and the third is in somewhat uncertain condition, it also is true that New England produces other things besides shoes and textiles.

The latest census of United States manufactures, this is a good time to remember, shows that NEW ENGLAND HOLDS FIRST PLACE IN PRODUCTION IN THE UNITED STATES of the following commodities:

Bells
Belting and Hose (rubber)
Boot and Shoe Cut Stock
Boot and Shoe Findings
Boots and Shoes (leather)
Boots and Shoes (rubber)
Children's Carriages and Sleds
Clocks
Cordage and Twine
Corsets
Cotton Goods
Cotton Small Wares
Cutlery and Edge Tools
Envelopes
Firearms
Hardware
Hats (fur felt)
Linen Goods
Marble and Stone Work
Motorcycles and Bicycles
Needles, Pins and Hooks-and-Eyes
Oilcloth (enameled)
Plated Ware
Saws
Screws (wood)
Silverware
Sporting and Athletic Goods
Stationery
Suspenders, Garters and Elastic Woven Goods
Textile Machinery
Wool Shoddy
Woolen Goods
Worsted Goods

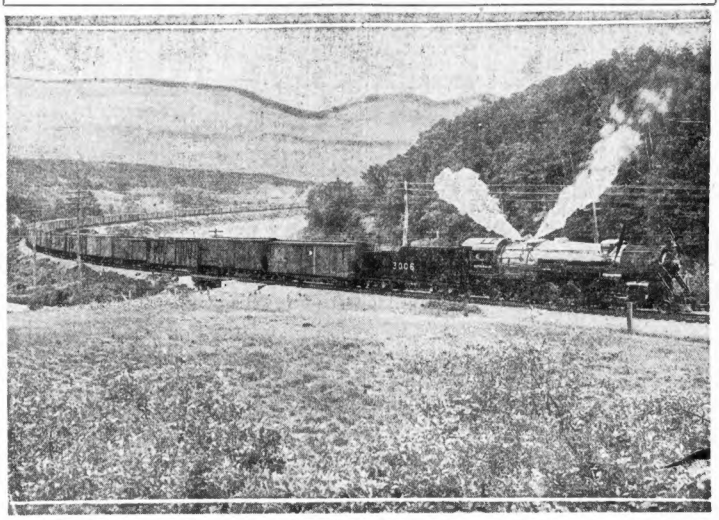
And the above list is not all of the story, nor nearly all.

In the production of leather belting, Massachusetts stands third among the States; Connecticut, fourth.

In the production of blacking, stains and dressings, Massachusetts' place is second.

Massachusetts is third in the production of paper boxes, second in brushes, fourth in canned and preserved fish, third in carpets and rugs, second in chocolate and cocoa products, second in confectionery, second in fancy articles, second in felt goods, third in flavoring extracts.

"VACATION LAND"—BUT SOMETHING MORE!



In relation to its railroad mileage New England is the greatest producing section of the United States.

The production of forest products on 5,459 miles of railroad in New England was 121,276 car loads in 1924, compared with 103,166 cars on a railroad of 9,525 miles, or nearly twice the mileage, serving the North Pacific Coast and California.

The Bangor & Aroostook Railroad of 616 miles, originated 25,894 carloads of potatoes in 1924, as compared with four principal railroads of 15,028 miles serving Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin, which originated 25,185 carloads in 1924.

7,871 miles of New England railroads originated 43,171 carloads of paper and its products in 1924, while three times the mileage in the paper producing sections of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, including the entire line of the New York Central, originated only 30,777 carloads.

5,301 miles of New England railroads originated 21,459 carloads of textiles, while 15,988 miles of line in the Southeast originated 20,067 carloads.

4,685 miles of New England railroads originated 10,215 carloads of sugar, syrup and molasses in 1924, compared with the Union Pacific and Santa Fe combined, of 21,465 miles, which originated 14,173 carloads, including their California production.

Shipments of pulpwood on three main originating railroads of New England equal any other three railroads of the country.

Comparing 6,894 miles of New England railroads with the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe systems of 53,654 miles, we find that your New England railroads originated 245,618 cars of general manufactures and miscellaneous freight as compared with 179,527 carloads for the total of these Western systems. Every important industrial center of the West is reached by the lines I have enumerated.

New England is consistently growing; its demands for service are becoming greater each year.

—Donald D. Conn, Manager Public Relations Section, Car Service Division, American Railway Association.

Not a Story of "Decline"

In the manufacture of glue, in the production of grease and tallow, hat and cap materials, home-furnishing goods, jewelry, knit goods, leather, machine tools, optical goods, paper and wood pulp, paper goods, piano and organ materials, pianos, pocketbooks, power pumps, rubber tires and tubes, sewing machines, silk goods, steam fittings, tools, toys and games, typewriters and wire, the name of at least one of the New England States is found among the FIRST FOUR.

Attention has been called to these stimulating and encouraging facts by General Manager Orra L. Stone of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, who says:

"When any section of the United States can equal or approach the above figures it will then be time for it to play a dirge appropriate to the 'decline of New England industry.' . . .

"It is perfectly obvious that any section of the country which shows a gain in population from one decade to another, and which cannot attribute that increase to the extension of either agriculture or mining, or both, must credit it to INDUSTRIAL increase. Everybody knows New England has practically no mining, although it does produce granite in large volume. Agriculture long since gave way to industry in New England.

"Yet from 1910 to 1920, southern New England, made up of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, in which three States the great industrial communities of this section are located, gained 16.2 per cent. in population, while the percentage of increase in population of continental United States during that same decade was 14.9 per cent. . . ."

Question—Are we, then, down-hearted?

Answer—Not on your life!

A Middle West Town and Its Shoe Shop

Will the New England leaders who meet tomorrow to complete the organization of the "Get-Together Club" enter the conference room to the tune of the "Industrial Blues"?

The orchestra, if any, is more likely to play a Prosperity March!

These delegates know, and the Governors who sent them know, that all New England is ripe for a venture in co-operation.

The "Get-Together Club," the New England Co-operative Council, will continue the work so splendidly begun one year ago by New England Week.

It will make for a better understanding of New England by New England, a keener appreciation by New Englanders of their big and little industries.

Only a few days ago the town of Salem, Illinois, a community of 5,000 people, celebrated the opening of a shoe factory, built by local subscriptions amounting to $125,000, and to be operated by manufacturers with headquarters in St. Louis.

The Illinois town made a holiday of the dedication, with a street parade, band concerts, oratory, fireworks and a banquet!

THAT is how they act out yonder, in a typical Mid-West "booster" town, over the advent of ONE industry.

Our problem is understanding, appreciating, holding, encouraging, MANY industries.

It will be part of the work of this new organization of New England Minute Men to show us how.

Are we ALL ready?
